A WORD ABOUT ROADS.

Whenever a group of farmers come together the road question is sure to come up. It is a vital question with them. Some one is resentful that big sums of money should be expended building highways while others endorse it as wise economy.

Civilization is a matter of school houses and transportation. Land values are governed largely by adjacent roads. If Princess Anne had appropriated thousands upon thousands of dollars for roads years ago, and expended it wisely, she would be one of the richest counties in Tidewater Virginia today.

It is true that taxes are burdensome. But if a macadam or other solid road passing your house raises the value of your land from $30 to $100 an acre and shortens your haul to market by three or four hours, what else have you coming if it also raises your taxes five or ten mills.

No sum of money appropriated for good roads is too much.

CARTER GLASS.

With every announcement of a new candidate in the political arena, some wise prognosticator of political events pops up with the proclamation that Congressman Carter Glass will get into the gubernatorial fight or will else be an opponent of Senator Claude A. Swanson. All this is the veriest speculation, according to those about the capitol who keep their fingers on the political pulse pretty nearly all the time.

The distinguished statesman from the hill city of Lynchburg has repeatedly stated that he had no announcement to make regarding his future actions in the political field, and while he has made no positive denial that he would be a candidate for governor, or that he would enter the race for the junior United States senatorship, neither has he said that he would.

Mr. Glass is entirely too astute a politician to sit idly in the boat and say nothing if he had any idea of entering the senatorial contest.

ASSESSING REAL ESTATE

Mr. T. J. Waterfield, engaged in re-assessing the realty of Princess Anne, under the five-year period, spent several days at Virginia Beach, this week in his official capacity. He made the office of W. T. Jarvis his headquarters. We have not heard the value of the lands here as ascertained by Mr. Waterfield, but have been told that some reductions have been made. At the former assessment the value was placed at something above $480,000. From this place Assessor Waterfield went to Cape Henry.

HOMELY SENSE

In small towns like Virginia Beach, for instance, mayors and councilmen have little opportunity for brilliant reforms or colossal constructive work, but they have frequent opportunity for the employment of common sense.

The action of the present administration, in connection with the Chamber of Commerce, in cutting weeds, brush, eliminating mosquitoes, and improving the lakes is commendable.

A little thing, but a sensible thing that was long left undone.

Air Ship Brought Down.

(From the Warrenton Sentinel.)

There were a number of perfectly constructed airships above Warrenton on Friday last, without attracting much notice. Now and then by glancing heavenward an observer might see one of them reposing on the lap of the storm as securely as a tired child in its mother's arms, and then it would glide away to pierce heaven's unfathomable depth above the clouds. Descending again it would sweep in graceful circles, now breasting the wind, now permitting itself to be swept along by the storm, and now in repose equal to that of Mohammed's coffin suspended half way between heaven and earth. "Poetry of motion" is a hackneyed description of the many and varied kinds of movements, but to none can it be as deservedly applied as to one of nature's airships.

The one in question, coming down nearer to earth attracted the attention of an evil-minded youth who pointed a gun at it, but did not fire; the airship was too high. Describing another circle it came near to earth, and the truant boy brought it down to rest no more. In a Warrenton stable yard it feeds on dead chickens, drinks water from a tomato can and spends its time in splanetic reflections on its own misery and ill usage.

The boy, some day, if something worse does not befall him, will be in the trenches and the news will come to him that the enemy has invaded his country and taken possession of his home and its defenseless inmates. He will pray for death to shut out the horrible picture, but before it comes to his relief he will have ample time to decide in his own mind whether he was more wantonly cruel to the buzzard than his fellow man had been to him.

Awful to Contemplate.

Those who know the people of Galicia, their habits and their land, and understand the effect of the war upon their fortunes, agree with observers on the spot that no where has war's affliction been more bitter. It is said that Belgium, at the height of its woe, might have ceased its sobbing out of very amazement at the miseries of these poor peasants on the frontiers of Austria and Russia.

Galicia, it is stated, has been almost depopulated. Villagers and farm dwellers alike have been thrust from their homes and forced to flee across the Carpathians into the regions around Vienna, there to accept what have they could find. For countless numbers death opened the haven. Resistance to their fate was impossible. They became a people without a country and for a refuge knocked at the door of a house threatened with famine and disease. How they have survived the winter, those hundreds upon hundreds of thousands of paupers is beyond knowing. But there they are.

About Hog Cholera.

If hog cholera appears confine your hogs to limited quarters that may be cleaned daily and spray three times a week with disinfectant (one part compound cresol solution to thirty parts water) until hog cholera has abated in your herd.

Treat them immediately with anti-hog-cholera serum, after which they should be kept on light diet with pure drinking water. The serum must be administered before the disease has progressed far in the herd, to get the best results.

Keep both eyes open on the man who advertises. His goods are worth advertising hence worth buying.

Of course the man who struts is a strutter, but a strutter is only a strutter and is never a man.

Must You Spank the Baby?

In this contrary and illogical world there are countless unpleasant duties one must face and perform, but no other one of them wrenches the heart as does the homely business of spanking baby.

Baby must be spanked—that is conceded.

But how much one would prefer putting his hand in the fire!

When baby has done some forbidden thing and looks up with a mischievous laugh that acknowledges guilt, but half dares you to punish, what shall you do?

When you thump her lightly on the head or hand, she crows with delight. She thinks you have caught the spirit of the joke. You repeat the thump, and then her eyes, suddenly grown serious, search your face quickly to see whether, after all, you are heartless.

Every fiber of you yearns to pet her and coax the smiles back to her face, but duty interposes and you scowl ferociously and thump again to clinch the matter.

Baby's eyes are no longer questioning seriously, her question has been answered, and all her little world become gray and drear. For one quick moment her eyes say to you what her tongue cannot: "You are big and strong, and I am little and weak and helpless. I trust you and love you, why do you want to hurt me?" And then her cup of grief overflows and she creeps to your knee to sob until her broken heart is healed.

It all seems terribly cruel. And yet it is infinitely more cruel to withhold punishment, for spoiled children start life with fundamental ideas all twisted out of shape, and in later years, when this heartless world begins to pull these ideas into straight lines, the process is painful beyond comprehension—so painful indeed, that to escape it the spoiled girls frequently accept the course of least resistance and drift into the social gutter.

The Professional Reformer.

The citizen who while diligent in his own business finds time to give sympathy and aid to the redress of public evils is much to be respected; but the professional reformer, the man who spends his life in compounding the sins he is inclined to by warning on those he has no mind to, is a public nuisance. Of this class of the unco righteous Emerson wrote:

"They affect me as the insane do. Their motive may be pious, but their methods are profane. They are a buzz in the ears."

A very little time spent by a man in censoring, censuring and seeking to correct what he considers the faults in other folks, suffices to persuade him that he is omniscient and immaculate and that all and singular who differ with his dicta on the smallest matter of opinion or conduct, are sons of Beelzebub and should be consigned to the outer darkness where there is weeping and wailing and gnashing of teeth.

Advertise.

I am the sad and silent cash register. My case is shiny—but I am like a well dressed man with an empty stomach. I am lean inside. My bell is stiff from not being rung. My keys seem to have lost their sense of duty. I come forth happy and smiling only to be condemned to a life of neglect. I belong to the dealer who does not believe in advertising.

Any way, when a woman argues she can always convince herself.

One dollar will bring you the Times for a year.

Potato Bugs on Increase.

Mr. A. Jeffers, who has devoted years to the study of agriculture, has an interesting and valuable article in a Norfolk paper on the destructive ravishes of the potato bug. For the benefit of our farmers we take the liberty of re-publishing the article, which is worthy of consideration by potato raisers:

The "Potato Bug or Beetle" is taking toll every year, and seems to be taking more and more "toll" each year; at least it seems to require greater effort and more poison to check the depredations of the pest. It is doubtful if early potatoes could be grown at all in the South if radical means were not taken to check the pest. It is a fact that the bugs are on hand in the potato fields before the potatoes are up, waiting for the first tender shoots to appear. In fact, as soon as the potato sprouts begin to crack the ground, the bugs go down into the cracks to greet, meet and eat the sprout before it shows above the ground.

To meet this "condition" and better enable the truckers to defend and protect their crops, the Virginia Truck Experiment Station has conducted a series of tests during the past year, using different chemicals and different combinations of chemicals; carefully noting results; even going to the trouble of counting, on limited areas, the live bugs before applying the poison, and then counting the dead ones after the application. By patient, persistent protracted efforts; careful intelligent examination and comparison, the Experiment Station authorities, Prof. T. C. Johnson director, and the Assistant State Pomologist, Loren B. Smith, have compiled the facts, figures and features, growth out of such tests, and the details are published in bulletin No. 14 just issued, together with the conclusions arrived at. This bulletin may be had on application either by mail or in person—a personal application being preferred by the director and his corps of able assistants, in order that a better knowledge may be gained regarding such tests. It would require many years by the individual trucker to secure the information derived from this bulletin, through his own individual efforts; besides it would be expensive. Valuable information is secured through this bulletin at no cost. Send or call for a copy, and be ready to meet the pest next crop.

Not a Christian.

The war in Europe must grieve the Christ.

He preached a doctrine of peace and love. He rebuked the spirit of hatred, of retaliation of aggression.

Since none but those who follow His teaching can truthfully call themselves Christians, it follows that not one of the rulers of the fighting powers—not one of the soldiers on the firing line is a Christian.

There are doubtless millions of men in battle who say their prayers, or cross themselves devoutly, but for all their mumble of words, their deeds cry out what they are. By their fruits ye shall know them.

The man who fights may be a good fellow, a polished gentleman, a kind father and a clean citizen, but he misstates the facts when he calls himself a Christian.

If I say I am honest, and yet steal I am a liar, and if I claim to be a Christian and yet held high in my heart, truth is not in me.

A wolf in sheep's clothing is none the less a wolf.

An hour in the garden is worth a week sitting on dry goods boxes about the stores.

Several new homes will be in course of erection here within the next few weeks.

A CARD.

To My Fellow Citizens of Princess Anne County, Virginia:

I hereby announce myself a candidate for Treasurer of Princess Anne County, Va., subject to the Democratic Primary on August 3rd.

In making this announcement I take occasion to refer to the part I took in the work of rescuing Princess Anne from the humiliation and disgrace of Negro rule, which then threatened our County.

It was then I served my people, and it is for them to say how well I did the work: Was Chairman of the Democratic County Committee for 21 years, for 21 years I served as Election Judge and for 21 years as Poll Book Commissioner. And it was during those years I had many disagreeable duties to discharge, as many will remember. On one occasion on court day at Princess Anne Courthouse two Negroes—Hodges and Land—were making violent speeches against the white people of the County John Nash came to me and said if he had twenty men he would take these Negroes from the stand. I told him to follow me and I would take them from the stand myself. I knocked Hodges from the stand and Land jumped over the fence, both leaving their hats in their flight.

When Tony Wilson was a Negro magistrate in Kempsville district, I was asked what should be done. I told my friends Tony had either to go out of office voluntarily or else he would disappear. The first case he had to try was at Princess Anne Court House. When he called his court to order I walked into the court room with a rope on my shoulder. After a while I said to Tony: "What the devil do you know about me?" He said: "Nash?" I then said to him: "Do you see this rope?" He said: "Yes sah, I've been watching that rope some time and I want to get rid of this office." I told him if he did, to follow me. We then went to Judge Kellam's office, and Tony said: "Master Judge, this here office I've got I want to get rid of it." Judge Kellam told him if he did, to sign "Those papers." Tony then said to me: "Mr. Cason, you ain't goin' to hang me now, are you?" I said to him that I had not said I was going to hang him, but had simply asked if he had not seen the rope over my shoulder.

On another occasion, it being court day, and the next day, Tuesday, being election day, James A. McAlpin and myself were in the Court-house yard when Jesse H. Caffee and his brother B. T. Caffee, who were running a hotel at Princess Anne, came up and said to me: "Waller, my dining room is full of Negroes and demand dinner, and my family is terribly frightened, won't you get a crowd and drive them out?" I pulled a pistol from James A. McAlpin's pocket, walked into the dining room alone and said: "I understand you Negroes want dinner. I have dinner enough in this gun for you all! The door was not large enough for them to get out. They were piled up four or five deep at the door!"

On the following night I was at Kempsville and James H. Bonney sent me word not to come to the Court House the next morning to serve as Judge of Election, as 200 Negroes would be there who said they intended to take my life. I borrowed a shot gun and at dawn next day rode to the Court House. There I found James H. Bonney and a yard full of Negroes. I drove to the back door of the hotel and got out of the buggy, making the remark: "I understand you black devils are going to take my life, and before taking it I am going to kill some of you." I then proceeded to put some shells in my gun. James H. Bonney came out in his night clothes and tried to pull me in the house. I said to him: "No, let me shoot them." His wife then came out, and yielding to her wishes, I went into the house. But as soon as I was inside Mr. Bonney locked the door, saying that I was the biggest fool he ever saw, as the Negroes had been there all night planning to kill me. When the sun rose I observed that this Negro mob were running and falling over fences in every direction. I was one of the Judges at the polls. About 10 o'clock John Capehart, a Negro, and one of the leaders of his race in Princess Anne, drove up with five wagon loads of Negroes to vote. When the voting of whites was slack, I voted two wagon loads of Negroes. By that time there was a rush of whites to the polls. Then I said to Capehart that as he had voted 11 Negroes, and as there was now a rush of white voters I was going to vote them one by one. He said me, that he had to vote his men and then go back and get more voters, and thereupon a rush was made for the window. Capehart being in front, I then told Capehart that if he did not get back and allow the white voters a chance I would leave the window and come out and knock him down. The Negro laughed and said: "Mr. Cason, I have never been knocked down in my life." I raised to get out of the window when E. E. Burroughs, one of the Judges of Election, said: "Waller, don't you go out there—those Negroes will kill you." I got out of the window and said to Capehart: "We are friends are we not?" "Yes, sir." You asked me to knock you down and I like to accommodate my friends!" Down went Capehart, falling at the window where the voting was being done. E. E. Burroughs looked out of the window and said: "Waller, has he voted?" I said no. Burroughs then remarked that he would never vote again, that he was dead. I crawled back to my place inside and told our boys to come on and vote, as it was not necessary to stop because there was a dead Negro. No one would come up to the window to vote on account of the Negro lying there, so I went out and pulled him around the corner of the Court House, where Dr. Wright took charge of him.

Six hours later some one came to me and said that Capehart wanted to see me. On going to where he was I found him sitting up and leaning against the Court House. He said: "Mr. Cason, are you mad with me?" When I told him I was not, he said he would never again ask me to knock him down—that he had seen more stars when I hit him than he has ever witnessed in the firmament.

At the next election this same Negro Capehart was appointed a Judge of election. A few minutes before sun-down the following day I got out of the window to go to Bonney's for a lamp so as to see how to count the ballots, making the remark as I left for the boys not to have to come soon after the polls had been closed, as some fun was to be had. I heard such a fuss and so much laughing in the voting room that I went back and asked what the trouble was. They said Capehart had gone out of the back window, saying he knew what that meant, and that they were going to kill him there that night.

As to the correctness of the foregoing statements, I respectfully refer to the following gentlemen, well known citizens: J. H. Bonney, A. T. Herber, J. I. Herriek, Randolph Ward, O. B. Means, Solomon Bonney, Judge J. M. Keating, H. E. Burroughs, R. L. Atwood, Martin Whitehead, John Barker, Whitehead, Major J. T. Woodhouse, J. O. Land, J. M. Malbon, J. T. Malbon, S. W. Ewell, J. F. Woodhouse.

And now, fellow-citizens, I submit that had it not been for prompt and vigorous action at a critical period in the political history of our county it would have been over-run by a horde of ignorant and vicious Negro officials, and that the part I played to avert such calamity was in obedience to a sacred duty—a duty I owed my wife and children—aye, the family of every white citizen of Princess Anne County.

And now, at the age of 41 years, I would as quickly resent in the most emphatic and vigorous manner any similar outrage upon the white manhood and womanhood of my County as I did in younger life.

In conclusion, I beg to assure the good people of Princess Anne County that if they elect me to serve them as Treasurer, that I will give the office my undivided and personal attention and endeavor to discharge its duties with credit to myself and to the best interests of the county.

I trust all my friends will be at the polls early on the 3d day of August and stay all day. Let us all pull together and put an end to ring rule.

Very respectfully,
W. W. CASON.

At The Beach.

The Beach jail is empty. Will it be so Monday night?

Our long-delayed paper cutter has at last got to the Beach depot, and will soon be installed.

Monday, July 5th will be observed as Fourth of July holiday.

The Beach will be thronged Monday with great crowds of excursionists. A hearty welcome is extended to one and all.

Vegetable carts are now in evidence. They daily arrive with garden luxuries to appease hungry Beachites.

Items of local interest to residents of the Beach and throughout the county are always welcomed by the editor. Bring or send them in. Don't hesitate.

The heavy rains of several weeks back are being followed by a spell of dry weather and now vegetation is beginning to droop but not die.

A big banner of "Welcome" greets our visitors. Come and feel at home! It is your town! Come and be at home. Nothing too good for you.

The Masonic fraternity of Princess Anne Court House, Lodge No. 25, is scheduled to meet in regular session Wednesday night, July 7th.

Commissioner G. W. Koerner of the Agricultural Department has mailed The Times a copy of the new hand book of Virginia. Thanks!

The Times this week is admitted to the mails under permit of the postal laws, application for recognition as second-class matter having been duly filed with postmaster Griggs.

An interesting and pretty little story written for publication in the Times is on our table. We are forced to hold it over for time and space, otherwise it would have been under public criticism several weeks ago.

The Chamber of Commerce did the right thing in placing Mr. A. P. Grice at its head. Alert, prompt, and catholic, business is not allowed to slumber or drag when the gentleman occupies the chair.

A few weeks ago we had storms and rains and the land was flooded. Now the cry is heard that a drouth is coming and vegetation will be ruined. And so it goes, human nature is never satisfied. It is selfish. It won't trust an over-ruling Providence that all is for our good.

Application has been filed by the Times for admittance to the mails as second-class matter. As the paper is a bona fide publication, and the only one printed in Princess Anne its prompt recognition is anticipated. When this shall have been done its circulation in every section of the county will be rapidly increased.

Monday night was our first attendance upon a session of the Chamber of Commerce. And we are moved to say, in all truth, we were favorably impressed. The body eminently means business, and we believe the things they are going after will be secured. They mean to get the big hotel. Then they will go after other and greater things.

Mr. Hickford of Norfolk, has leased the restaurant and sleeping end of the Princess Anne Inn, thus relieving Rev. G. W. Griffin from duties that he could not well discharge on account of other work. Mr. Hickford knows the restaurant business from A to Z, and will doubtless give all guests and others first-class service. Mrs. Drinkwater will be in charge of the linen and sleeping rooms.

Subscribe for the Times.

An Important Meeting.

The meeting of the Chamber of Commerce, Saturday night is a vital one and not a member should fail attendance. Strain a point and come. Much depends on the action of this meeting.

Contractor Johnson.

The brick work of the new Catholic Church has been completed and contractor Johnson will push the superstructure to early completion. By the way, Mr. Johnson has just been awarded the contract for erecting 22 new houses at Petersburg.

Optical Branch at the Beach.

The C. L. Hall Optical Co. of Norfolk has established a branch of its business here. Their place of business is on 17th st., using the front portion of the Virginia Beach Library quarters.

Securing Quarters.

The Norfolk Baptist Ministers have rented the Rudolph cottage for the tea days of the Encampment, and also eight rooms of the Princess Anne Inn for the same period.

FOR COUNTY TREASURER

I respectfully announce myself a candidate for Treasurer of Princess Anne County.

VOLUME 1, NUMBER 9.

VIRGINIA BEACH, VIRGINIA, FRIDAY, JULY 9, 1915

ONE DOLLAR PER YEAR

AFFAIRS AT THE BEACH COUNTY OF PRINCESS ANNE

Summer quinnies has no sporting place along the beach.

Twenty-four days and then this primary.

It is better to be famous than rich, but we'd rather be both.

Dr. Man of Henderson, N. C. is the guest of Mrs. Homer Atkinson.

Fancy enterprising of all kinds neatly done by Mrs. A. J. Frenger, at Virginia Beach Hotel.

Dr. R. E. Whitehead of Kempville was at the beach Monday and called at our manions. Come again.

Kevill Glennan, pictorial artist of repute, has gone up the bay on an angling expedition.

Man's wisdom points out his own imperfections, while his ignorance magnifies virtues that do not exist.

One lone unfortunate occupied the beach last Monday. Only a drunk—that's all.

The name of Rev. R. J. Atkinson of Kempville is on our list as the gentleman will be here from later on.

Candidates for office are now putting in their best legs. Making hay while the sun shines," as it were.

Dress-making and all kinds of fancy sewing by Mrs. A. J. Frenger, at the Hotel Virginia Beach.

Brief biographical sketches, elucidated by photographic adornment will have place in this paper when the primary is over.

We have recently been blessed by a number of refreshing showers. They were needed and vegetation is now pushing forward by leaps and bounds.

That European war will prove a God-send to American seafarers. The crop of impoverished noblemen will be quite sufficient to go round.

Threatening aspect of the weather Monday kept many from the beach. Otherwise the crowd would have broken all previous records.

Yes, we do job printing and solicit your work. Our facilities are ample to meet the wants of residents of the beach. Give us a trial.

The Rudolph cottage is fitted to capacity with Norfolk and Portsmouth people attending the Encampment and will remain ten days.

The Norfolk Southern electric division had all its available cars in service Monday. People coming and going from the cities and country from early morn till late at night.

The pressing clink, in rear of W. T. Jarvis, is in full blast and doing nice work. Give those boys a portion of your work, as they are experts. Andrew Pollard is proprietor.

Mr. P. B. Holland wants his advertisement in this newspaper. Would have had it running ere this but for illness. It will appear in the near future.

Dimensions considered, there's not a church in town that draws the number who assemble in the postoffice lobby during mail openings. The room is not large enough to hold 'em.

Postmaster Griggs is overworked and underpaid. Red tape and useless requirements in postal "regulations" are as irksome as so-called civil service reform.

Mrs. J. J. Dasher of 14th street, entertained as her guest Misses Gertrude and Malva Waterfield, Mrs. J. W. Grimstead and Miss Carrie Grimstead, Mrs. A. A. Hall, Mr. Wm. Baum and Mr. Wm. Hall.

An inspection of South Virginia Beach has recently been made by parties seeking investment. While details have not been given plans for its development and easy connection with Virginia Beach were discussed.

Dr. G. M. Meredith came before our readers in this issue with a change in his advertisement, to which attention is directed. His supply of drugs, medicines, etc., and such articles as are kept by first class drug stores is ample.

Dr. R. Whitehead, of Kempville, owns a nice little cottage for summer purposes. It is west of and near Mason's Hall. The doctor uses it for week-end outings at the seaside. Inexpensive and enjoyable.

A prominent citizen of Kempville told us Monday this paper would be favored with a batch of interesting news items for its next issue, by a capable and interesting writer. Look out, this square with our desires and harmonizes with those of our patrons.

Formed in 1891, Contains 285 Square Miles.—Finest Section in State For Crops, Potatoes and Tobacco.—Noted for Fish, Oysters and Wild Fowl.—Climate, Transportation, Schools, Churches, etc.

The "Hand Book" of Virginia, published by the Department of Agriculture and Immigration at Richmond, under supervision of George W. Koiner, Commissioner, is on our table. It is printed on good paper, embellished with a number of illustrations and contains much valuable information pertaining to Virginia and its resources.

There are 100 counties in the State, and a brief description of each one of the hundred counties is given. From the chapter devoted to the county of Princess Anne we take the following:

Princess Anne—This county was formed in 1691 from Norfolk county and lies in the extreme Southeast corner of the State, 110 miles Southeast of Richmond. It contains an area of 285 square miles.

The surface is level, soil dark loam, marshy and sandy in some sections—with red clay sub-soil, easily tilled and generally productive, especially the swamp lands in Hollandswamp, Eastern Shore swamp and Blackwater. There are also some fine lands on the borders of the creeks and inlets. Farm products are corn, oats, potatoes and trucks.

The people are very extensively engaged in the latter and large quantities of vegetables and fruits are annually shipped to the northern markets. For general trucks this is one of the finest sections of the State, especially the Pungo district.

This county is noted for its fish—especially the catches in Back bay—and oysters of unequal quality; and wild fowls of great variety are found in large quantities, the shipments of which produce large revenues to its citizens.

Nature has been exceedingly lavish to this county in the bestowal of natural products, not only in large extent but of superior quality. This is the home of the renowned Lynnhaven oysters and canvas-back ducks and other water fowl, the latter being in such abundance as to make gunning at certain seasons quite a profitable industry. Stock raising is principally restricted to the raising of cows for dairy and family purposes, although many stock cattle are fed. Considerable attention is paid to hogs.

Transportation facilities are ample and convenient to all sections of the county by rail and the numerous navigable bays and rivers, besides an ocean front of over twenty miles. These afford very superior market advantages.

Virginia Beach, a famous and attractive summer resort on the Atlantic shore, is in this county. It is connected with Norfolk by two routes of the electric division of the Norfolk Southern railway, one of which being by way of Cape Henry.

The timber consists of pine, cypress, oak, gum, cedar, elm, etc. North river, running south, and the various sounds, bays and creeks afford ample water supply and drainage. Barrels, boxes and crates are manufactured, also large quantities of cypress shingles.

The climate is temperate and healthy and water fine in nearly all sections. Churches and schools are numerous and conveniently distributed. The county is well supplied with telephone communication and the mail facilities are good.

Princess Anne is the county seat.

Need of Public Hall for Beach.

Inquiring as to the meaning of a pile of brick lying near the corner of a lot on 17th street near the ocean, this paper was informed that Dr. E. H. Morrison was the person to answer.

Dr. Morrison not being in reach upon further questioning, it was suggested that one of the needs and wants of the Beach was a public hall—that Dr. Morrison contemplated erecting a substantial building on the lot in question, but had not determined its kind. "But," said the party addressed, "a public hall is just what we need and it will pay the location is just right; there is not a decent place in town for public meetings—church meetings, social dances, church fairs, public gatherings, committee meetings and so on ad infinitum. The Beach is growing and will grow fast and faster; the big hotel will be built and an all year patronage secured; we will have a boulevard to Norfolk and the fort at Cape Henry will add to our importance. Yes, I firmly believe Dr. Morrison will hit the nail on the head if he uses that lot for the building of a public hall on one of its floors, with stores and offices above and below."

Baptist Young People's Union.

The following program will be observed Sunday by the Baptist Young People's Union of Virginia:

Sunrise worship on the pier at 5:30 a. m. to 11 a. m.—L. P. Leavelle, Jr., Baptist Convention of Organized Classes.

11:30 a. m.—Special Music.

12:30 p. m.—Address, "The relation of the B. Y. P. U. and Baptist Organized Classes," L. P. Leavelle, Jr.

1:30 p. m.—Sermon, Dr. R. D. Gray.

3:30 p. m.—Song and prayer.

5:30 p. m.—Report of nominating committee; Miscellaneous business.

7:30 p. m.—Symposium: Several speakers.

The B. Y. P. U. spirit.

The B. Y. P. U. pledge.

The B. Y. P. U. emblem.

9:30 p. m.—Baptist Convention of Organized Classes.

7:30 p. m.—Demonstration service.

8:15 p. m.—Special music—Wake Forest Faculty Quartet.

8:30 p. m.—Sermon by Dr. John H. Sappery—"Solomon in all his glory."

Bright Hotel Outlook.

The persistent and untiring energy on the part of the Chamber of Commerce, aided by public spirited citizens of the Beach, seem to give assurance that the projected hotel will be erected. Most of the required subscriptions were secured some time ago. The balance wanted was not large. When the situation was brought to the attention of prominent Norfolk business men enough was conditionally pledged by them to make up the deficit. The conditions it is said were the serious and no difficulty was expected in their compliance. This, it is believed, removes all doubt as to the building of the hotel. Now for a long pull, a strong pull and a pull all together.

Ten Dollars and Costs.

An assault and battery case was heard before Squire Israel Griggs Wednesday afternoon July 7th, in which James B. Woodhouse was plaintiff and John N. Parker defendant, both parties hailing from Norfolk. They had previously attended a dance at the Casino, where it seems, the trouble originated, but later culminated some distance from the Casino. A hummer of witnesses were heard by Judge Griggs, who adjudged the defendant guilty and imposed a fine of $10 and costs.

THE LUCKY FISHERMEN.

Big Catch Wednesday Morning—Unprofitable Season Seems Broken—Chance to Redoubt Early—Lasses—400 Pounds—Cow Fish.

The half dozen or so of fishermen at the south end of the Beach had a turn for the better in their "catch" Wednesday, when a hundred to one hundred and fifty barrels, all told, were landed. While these figures are not by any means large they are good and encourage the hope that our fishermen have reached the limit of their unprofitable business and that from now on they may be able to make up for disasters sustained in the early spring when severe and repeated storms caused the loss of thousands of dollars to poles and nets and demoralized or drove the fish from the grounds to other waters. The "catch" Wednesday embraced the usual variety of food fish common to the Beach.

Embraced in the haul was a specimen of an unknown variety to fishing people about the Beach. Those who professed to know said it was a "cow fish," whatever that may mean. It was caught by the crew of Capt. W. A. Payne, who made arrangements to convey it to the ocean front on 14th street where it will be placed on exhibition. It will weigh about 400 pounds and is a worth seeing. An unusually looking thing.

Proceedings Before Squire Griggs.

Several cases were heard Thursday morning before Squire Griggs. They resulted in compromise. The court washed in the town hall, a considerable number of spectators being in attendance.

The first case was that of "The Simple Account Book Sales Co." versus A. A. Johnston. Judgment against defendant for $45.

The suit of George & Co., Incorporated, Baltimore meat dealers, against the B. P. Holland Co. of Virginia Beach, was settled by Mr. Holland agreeing to pay $23.85. In a statement before the court Mr. Holland made it clear that he only closed the suit to get rid of litigation on account of ill health; that the agreement he had with the George Company had not been complied with and that said company was justly indebted to him.

A Pitiful Sight.

The knee-deep sand in wagon roads about the Beach is as hard on horse-flesh as the mud roads of the country after a month's rain. It is a pitiful sight to see the poor animals under the lash of a merciless driver struggling to draw their loads all too heavy. Be merciful to your dumb animals. They can hear, can see and feel as acutely as you, but cannot talk. Good roads in city, good roads in country, good roads every where, that is the slogan of the Times. It's kindness to your horses and money in your pocket.

Dr. Whitehead's Announcement.

Dr. R. Whitehead of Kempville is seeking legislative honors. His card of announcement appears elsewhere in this paper. He is a well-known practicing physician and held in high esteem. He announces Good Roads, Good Schools and the enactment of laws putting into practical operation State-Wide Prohibition as his platform.

THE BAPTIST ENCAMPMENT

Began its 1915 Work Tuesday, July 6th—Many Workers Taking Part—Session To Last Ten Days.

The Virginia Baptist Encampment, which will hold a ten-day session, began its work in its several departments Tuesday, July 6th, under promising auspices, many religious workers both from Virginia and surrounding States being in attendance.

The training school for Sunday School and B. Y. P. U. Workers opened its several divisions under leadership of Mrs. Antonioette Abernathy Lamoreaux.

The Pastors' Conference, Rev. George W. McDaniel, D. D., leader, began its daily sessions at 10 o'clock in the Baptist Church.

The Chautauqua lectures series began Tuesday night with a lecture by Dr. Clinton N. Howard of Rochester, N. Y., on "Why God Made a Woman."

The Woman's Missionary Union Conference, Mrs. Julian P. Thomas, of Richmond, Director, opened its work by a discussion of "Mission Study," by Mrs. H. B. Cross of Staunton.

The Vacation Bible School began its work in the Beach public school building, under Rev. H. B. Cross, director.

The other features of the Encampment are the Annual Convention of the Baptist Y. P. U. and the Convention of Baptist Organized Classes, both of which occur on Saturday and Sunday.

Rev. Dr. Stratton's address inaugurating the Encampment was a strikingly opportune and timely feature of the session.

June Meteorological Summary.

The following report for June, 1915, is from the records in the office of Mr. John F. Newsom, local forecaster for U. S. Weather Bureau at Cape Henry.

Atmospheric Pressure—Mean, 29.99; highest 30.26, on the 28th; lowest 29.53 on the 2d.

Princess Anne A. F. and A. M.

Princess Anne Lodge No. 25 A. F. and A. M., which own an excellent hall at the Court House has its stated communication on the 7th instant at 2 o'clock in the afternoon. This lodge is made up for the most part of country people, many of whom are remote, hence it convenes in the afternoon. It has sturdy material, numbers well on to a hundred and is flourishing.

Virginia Beach Lodge No. 274 A. F. and A. M., will hold its stated July 11th communication in Mason Hall, on Wednesday, July 14th. Routine business.

Notes Personal and Otherwise

Miss Octavia Alipier of the Maryland school for the blind, is at the Atkinson cottage.

Mrs. Anne Gary and Master Turnbull Gary of Richmond are visiting at the Atkinson cottage.

Mrs. James Weisiger, Mrs. R. D. Hall and Miss Virginia Hall are spending some time at Virginia Beach.

Mrs. M. W. Brown of Norfolk is visiting her sister-in-law, Mrs. E. H. Kelley.

The earth was refreshed Thursday afternoon by a generous summer shower. It was needed.

A Norfolk barge with monk and hand-organ is at the Beach amusing the juvenile population.

Mrs. James S. Greves and family are at the Beach for the Summer stopping at the Skagway cottage.

We regret that Mr. M. S. Marmaduke continues ill at his home on Cypress Avenue.

Mal A. M. Wheeler, who is a guest at the Robert E. Lee cottage, gave us a friendly call Friday. Come again, major.

The Norfolk Southern has a force at work removing and boarding up and weeding along its right-of-way at the Beach. Big improvement.

Mrs. S. A. Davis and Miss Bell Church of Richmond, who are on the Baptist Mission Board, are at the Atkinson cottage.

Two Sunday schools from Norfolk had their morning session Wednesday at the Park Avenue and the Knox Presbyterian schools.

Harry McCoy of Norfolk was here Thursday on legal business. He is senior member of the law firm of McCoy, Smith and Betty, Norfolk.

Mrs. Dr. Land and Miss Louise Land have been absent from the Beach several months on an extensive sight-seeing tour.

The Ladies Aid Society did not serve dinner at the Casino last Monday, owing to the most efficient member of their tent.

Mrs. J. H. P. Leigh (nee Mary Atkinson) and her son and husband will spend the remainder of the season with her mother, Mrs. Homer Atkinson.

Rev. J. S. Shelton, Miss Katharine Ingle, Rev. J. F. Love, Richmond, Miss M. W. Anderson Chatham, Mrs. Anne Blair Dry Fork, are stopping at the Carrington.

The cozy little cottage of Miss Annie Pierce of Norfolk, on twenty-second street is nearing completion, under the energetic strokes of Contractor Johnson.

The cottage on Atlantic street and in rear of the Fernside Hotel, occupied by several Petersburg ladies, is becoming considerably damaged by fire, is being repaired.

Squire Griggs held two sessions of court in the council chamber this week. He presides with dignity and simplicity and metes out justice with an even hand.

Mr. and Mrs. Carman of Norfolk came to the Beach Thursday for a week-end outing, and are stopping at the Rudolph. Mr. Carman is an old newspaper man and called at our manions.

Miss Kate Woolfolk of Richmond has taken the Robert E. Lee cottage for the season and securing business. Among registered guests are Rev. Mr. Downing and friends, delegates from Appomattox and Maj. A. M. Wheeler.

The lanner thrown across 17th st. by the Chamber of Commerce, extending a heavy "welcome" to the Baptist Encampment attracts due attention, and elicits favorable comment. Mr. F. T. Cooley had the details in charge and did his work well.

Sulphate of iron is now being applied to grass and other vegetation growing prevailing in the town lanes and marring their beauty. The action of this mineral in destroying vegetation is said to be effective, but not injurious to life.

Floyd J. Triplett was at the Beach Monday circulating among his friends. He is a citizen of Portsmouth, N. C., and publisher of the Independent. He is giving his readers a high-toned liberal education and is well supported.

WESTMORELAND DAVIS FOR GOVERNOR.

Announcement has been made that the honors for the Virginia Democratic gubernatorial nomination in 1917 will be shared with Messrs. Taylor Elyson and Garland Pollard by Mr. Westmoreland Davis of Loudoun county. This will make a three-cornered race in which the voters of the State will have difficulty in choosing the best man from among a trio of most excellent citizens and public servants.

While Mr. Davis has not yet had time to impress his views in detail upon subjects at issue, yet his past utterances and fine public record give ample evidence that he is a statesman fully acquainted with the needs of the Commonwealth and of a virile personality and energy to put into effect whatever new measures of legislation he may inspire.

We are assured that Mr. Davis is a "practical" man. That most abused term often covers the man of one idea with the mantle of adequacy and gives to the mere plodder a certificate of recommendation. The highways and the byways are full of merely "practical" men who accomplish nothing but their own petty and selfish purposes.

When elevated by chance or fortune to positions for which by nature and culture they are unfitted these "practical" persons follow the beaten track of conservatism.

It is the refuge of mediocrity that leads to stagnation. These "practical" people have become one of the great afflictions of the age, and especially in political affairs. The really practical man in high public position is one endowed with inspiration and idealism, one who can move out of the rut and not only keep step with progress but show the way.

Mr. Davis is a farmer and proud of his profession, holding that agriculture is its higher aspects is second to none, and that upon agricultural development, in the last analysis, is to be found the stimulus and security for a sound social and financial system. He is an advocate of scientific and intensified farming. He is a friend of the tiller of the soil and has scant patience with the tiller of the soil of which latter type there are all too many in the South.

Mr. Davis has long been a leader in the Good Roads and Tax Reform movements and also is a champion in the cause of conservation of Commonwealth resources and economy in public affairs. These are very vital issues to the people of Virginia.

Mr. Davis' opponents for the high office of Governor are both men of sterling worth and integrity but to a certain extent they appear to be of that ultra conservative school which since the war has signally failed to secure to this State the dignity and position which its resources and its importance demand. Attorney-General Pollard is beyond all question a man of splendid legal ability and lofty character, but there are many who would hesitate to invest him with greater powers than he now possesses because his alleged overzealousness in so-called "reform" and prohibition movements in which he has evidenced a somewhat ruthless disregard of the rights and privileges of the minority, against which influences the tide of opposition is slowly but surely rising.

If Mr. Davis will give the people of Virginia assurances that he will confine his activities to constructive measures looking solely to the business of the State, and eschew the side issues of private fads and factions, of late years so clamorously insisted, he will undoubtedly make a strong bid for the favor of the people of Virginia. We await his platform with interest.

THE HARRISON ANTI-NARCOTIC FEDERAL LAW.

During the last session of Congress an individual from Alabama, clothed with a power and authority to inspire legislation one would think impossible but to a Czar or Sultan, succeeded in passing the most drastic and despotic measure upon a helpless and friendless minority of American citizens that our frantic and nefarious prohibitive activities can show, and had previously longed for in this respect. As a result it is pointed out by a writer in one of the New York newspapers that upon a conservative estimate over twenty-seven thousand persons have already been deprived of their lives through the operation of this law, and that quite double that number have been driven hopelessly insane. Of course it is possible to kill any disease by killing the patient and for the first time in human history we are presented with the spectacle of legislation by a civilized government—one indeed boasting itself as the protector and refuge of life, liberty and happiness deliberately adopting a policy of the ruthless and brutal elimination of what it deems the "unfit." Worst of all, the newspapers and the medical fraternity seem to be passive parties to this national crime. The history of the law is the most atrocious and tyrannical ever perpetrated.

VIRGINIA BEACH THE MECCA.

Picnics and excursions from all sections of the State is the order of the day at Virginia Beach. Daily increasing crowds follow the rise of the temperature to the seashore. Commodious and convenient car service from the business heart of Norfolk is taxed to handle the local crowds that seek a few hours respite from the dust and heat and contamination of the sweltering city to find health and recreation at this famous resort. Here where the land smiles down upon the sea and the sea laughs back at the land is the ideal spot of the Atlantic coast. The prevailing southwest winds that bring the ozone of vast pine forests to the very ocean's rim is a source of surprise to all visitors and a phenomenon unknown to very few seaside resorts of the world. Except at rare intervals during the winter storms the boisterous sea winds of other coast resorts are unknown here.

FUNERAL OF GEN. DIAZ.

The funeral of Gen. Porfirio Diaz, who died in Paris a few days ago, was held in that city Monday at the Catholic church of St. Honoré d'Eylan, and was largely attended, including representatives of the government of France, Paris, the Mexican government, the Ecuadorian minister to France and military attaches of the Japanese government.

The body of the late Mexican president was deposited in the vault of the church, where it will await shipment to America when conditions will permit.

Street railway officials in Richmond say the "Hines" are making inroads there of about $500 a day upon their revenues.

Taking of the Bastille.

The celebration of July 4, 1915, is among the things that were in the United States, but what the Fourth is to Americans the 14th of July has the same significance to the Frenchman.

The French army that came to assist the American colonies in the Revolutionary struggle returned to their own country with a love for republican institutions. This, combined with other causes, principally the accumulated wrongs inflicted on the people of France for many centuries, by Kings and Nobles, raised a storm which swept from that beautiful land, forever, all traces of feudalism. The Bastille was a strong fortress and prison in the city of Paris, in the gloomy and mysterious cells of which many a poor victim of arbitrary power expiated some offense to Monarch or Noble, or perhaps some fancied slight to a powerful and vindictive courtier.

On the 14th of July, 1789, the people of Paris arose in their strength and, after a fierce and bloody struggle got possession of and destroyed this last stronghold of feudalism and tyranny in France.

The key of the Bastille was sent to George Washington, then at the zenith of his fame. The anniversary of the destruction of this hideous prison is celebrated joyously by the French people.

Digging Their Own Graves.

Quinn River, Virginia.

It is a sad spectacle to see a nation of people disintegrating and wasting away through sheer inability for self-government.

Yet that is just the condition that prevails in Mexico, and will continue until the United States assumes the burden, stamps out anarchy and brigandage, and places the republic upon a substantial working basis.

Kindness and loves of bread will not avail, for the Mexicans themselves have clearly demonstrated their utter incapacity for self-government and their entire indifference to the higher tenets of humanity.

Mexico totters upon the brink of its open grave, and only the strong staying hand of the United States can save it from its self-inflicted fate.

Should we succor the starving and rescue the perishing at the point of the bayonet, or should we abandon a suffering and bleeding people to their inevitable fate?

Let Them Feel The Sun.

The sun's rays make sunny children. It brightens their eyes and broadens their smiles and puts the joy of life into their little souls. It strengthens their minds and develops their physique and lays the foundation for a career of honor and usefulness in the school of life.

Let the kiddies bask in the sun. Let its rays descend upon them that in after years their souls may radiate the joys of life to those who follow in their footsteps.

For the sun is our most learned doctor, our most profound preacher, and the greatest builder and rejuvenator of the human race.

And an hour in the sun is more potent than an eternity in the shadows.

Wan't Testify Against Thawband.

Evelyn Nesbitt Thaw, summoned to testify against Harry K. Thaw, her husband, in his trial before a jury to determine his mental condition, has made emphatic announcement that she will not testify against her husband under any circumstances. She says she will stand upon her constitutional rights.

One dollar will bring you the Times for a year.

When a young man, by diligence and industry, struggles through a medical school and later passes the State board of examiners, it does not necessarily follow that he knows the twin trades of medicine and surgery from cover to cover. It merely signifies that he has acquired the right to practice medicine without interference from the sheriff.

No one speaks of the doctor's business as "healing," rather, the trade is referred to as "practicing" medicine. The word practice is used advisedly. One practices in order to become proficient in any art or sport. A doctor practices on unsuspecting humans, and at length reduces a theory to a fact of personal experience.

From this it would seem that the older the doctor, the better his work. And this would indeed be true except for the fact that the science of medicine never stays in one spot over night. Each morning shows a fresh advance and brings to light a new piece of information about the power of drugs, or a new system of coating the liver with floor varnish.

Some old doctors, by continued study, keep up with the march of events, but others are kept too busy curing belly-aches and setting fractures in the good old-fashioned way, to familiarize themselves with the pet name of every new microbe.

The modern doctor is a crank about fresh air and sunshine and good water; and whereas the old-timer considered whiskey and morphine the rod and staff of the profession, his modern brother shuns these two as a pestilence.

Medical men have made great strides in recent years; they use fewer doses and more cleanliness than of yore; they prevent nine-tenths of the old-fashioned diseases, and cure the other tenth by cutting out some portion of the patient's clock work and a large portion of his bank account.

They have undoubtedly saved more people than they have killed, and are therefore entitled to credit, but there will be no public demonstration in their favor until they cure cancer, prevent tuberculosis, and discover the microbe that causes a woman to talk about her neighbor.

Fourth of July Fatalities.

Nineteen persons dead and 903 injured was the sacrifice in the United States to the two days' celebration of Fourth of July this year. In 1914 there were 12 killed and 879 injured.

The Norwegian press eulogizes the American Government for asking Germany to modify her submarine policy. Quite a number of Norwegian ships have been torpedoed by German submarines, hence the eulogies.

A CARD.

To My Fellow Citizens of Princess Anne County, Virginia:

I hereby announce myself a candidate for Treasurer of Princess Anne County, Va., subject to the Democratic Primary on August 3rd.

In making this announcement I take pleasure to refer to the part I took in the work of rescuing Princess Anne from the humiliation and disgrace of Negro rule, which then threatened our County.

It was then I saved my people, and it is for them to say how well I did the work. I was Chairman of the Democratic County Committee for 23 years, for 24 years I served as Election Judge and for 21 years as Poll Book Commissioner. And it was during those years I had many disagreeable duties to discharge, as many will remember. On one occasion on court day at Princess Anne (fourteen two Negroes—Hodges and Land—were making violent speeches against the white people of the County. John Nash came to me and said if he had twenty men he would take these Negroes from the stand; I told him to follow me and I would take them from the stand myself. I knocked Hodges from the stand and Land jumped over the fence, both leaving their hats in their flight.

When Tony Wilson was a Negro magistrate in Kempville district, I was asked what should be done. I told my friends they had either to go out of office voluntarily or else he would displace them. The first case he had to try was at Princess Anne Court House. When he called his court in order I walked into the court room with a rope on my shoulder. After a while I said to Tony: "What the devil do you know about law?" He said: "Bah!" I then said to him: "Do you see this rope?" He said: "Yes sah, I've been watching that rope some time and I want to get rid of this office." I told him if he did, to follow me. We then went to Judge Kellam's office, and Tony said: "Master Judge, this here office I've got I want to get rid of it." Judge Kellam told him if he did, to sign "these papers." Tony then said to me: "Mr. Cason, you ain't goin' to hang me, are you?" I said to him that I had not said I was going to hang him, but had simply asked if he had not seen the rope over my shoulder.

On another occasion, I being court day, and the next day, Tuesday, being election day, James A. McAlpine and myself were in the Court-house yard when Jesse H. Caffee and his brother B. T. Caffee, who were running a hotel at Princess Anne, came up and said to me: "Walter, my dining room is full of Negroes and demand dinner, and my family is terribly frightened, won't you get a crowd and drive them out?" I pulled a pistol from James A. McAlpine's pocket, walked into the dining room alone and said: "I understand you Negroes want dinner. I have dinner enough in this gun for you all! The door was not large enough for them to get out. They were piled up four or five deep at the door!"

On the following night I was at Kempville and James H. Bonney sent me word not to come to the Court House the next morning to serve as Judge of Election, as 200 Negroes would be there who said they intended to take my life. I borrowed a shot gun and at dawn next day rode to the Court House. There I found James H. Bonney and a yard full of Negroes. I drove to the back door of the hotel and got out of the buggy, making the remark: "I understand you black devils are going to take my life, and before taking I am going to kill some of you." I then proceeded to put some shells in my gun. James H. Bonney came out in his night clothes and tried to pull me in the house. I said to him: "No, let me shoot them." He then came out, and yielding to her wishes, I went into the house; but as soon as I was inside, Mr. Bonney locked the door, saying that I was the biggest fool he ever saw, as the Negroes had been there all night planning to kill me. When the sun rose I observed that this Negro mob were running and falling over fences in every direction. I was one of the Judges at the polls. About 10 o'clock John Capehart, a Negro, and one of the leaders of his race in Princess Anne, drove up with five wagon loads of Negroes to vote. When the voting of whites was over, I voted two wagon loads of Negroes. By that time there was a rush of whites to the polls. Then I said to Capehart that as he had voted 15 Negroes, and as there was now a rush of white voters I was going to vote them one by one. He said no, that he had to vote his men and then go back and get more voters, and thereupon a rush was made for the window, Capehart being in front. I then told Capehart that if he did not move back and allow the white voters a chance I would leave the window and come out and knock him down. The Negro laughed and said: "Mr. Cason, I have never been knocked down in my life." I raised to get out of the window when E. E. Burroughs, one of the Judges of Election, said: "Walter, don't you go out there—those Negroes will kill you." I got out of the window and said to Capehart: "We are friends are we not?" "Yes, sir." You asked me to knock you down and I like to accommodate my friend." Down went Capehart, falling at the window where the voting was being done. E. E. Burroughs looked out of the window and said: "Walter, he's voted." I said no, Burroughs then remarked that he would never vote again, that he was dead. I crawled back to my place inside and told our boys to come on and vote, as it was not necessary to stop because there was a dead Negro. No one would come up to the window to vote on account of the Negro lying there, so I went out and pulled him around the corner of the Court House, where Dr. Wright took charge of him.

Six hours later some one came to me and said that Capehart wanted to see me. On going to where he was I found him sitting up and leaning against the Court House. He said: "Mr. Cason, are you mad with me?" When I told him I was not, he said he would never again ask me to knock him down—that he had seen more stars when I hit him than he has ever witnessed in the firmament.

At the next election this same Negro Capehart was appointed a Judge of election. A few minutes before sundown the following day I got out of the window to go to Bonney's for a lamp so as to see how to count the ballots, making the remark as I left for the boys not to leave too soon after the polls had been closed, as some fun was to be had. I heard such a fuss and so much laughing in the voting room that I went back and asked what the trouble was. They said Capehart had gone out of the back window, saying he knew what that meant, and that they were going to kill him there that night.

As to the correctness of the foregoing statements, I respectfully refer to the following gentlemen, well known citizens: J. H. Bonney, A. T. Herbert, J. I. Herriek, Randolph Ward, O. B. Meigs, Leonard Bonner, Judge J. M. Keeling, E. E. Burroughs, P. L. Alwood, Martin Whitehead, John Earle Whitehead, Major J. T. Woodhouse, J. O. Land, J. M. Maibon, J. T. Maibon, S. W. Ewell, J. F. Woodhouse.

And now, fellow-citizens, I submit that had it not been for prompt and vigorous action at a critical period in the political history of our country I would have been over-run by a horde of ignorant and vicious Negro officials, and that the part I played to avert such calamity was in obedience to a sacred duty—a duty I owed my wife and children—aye, the family of every white citizen of Princess Anne County.

And now, at the age of 64 years, I would as quickly resent in the most emphatic and vigorous manner any similar outrage upon the white manhood and womanhood of my County as I did in younger life.

In conclusion, I beg to assure the good people of Princess Anne County that if they elect me to serve them as Treasurer, I will give the office my undivided and personal attention and endeavor to discharge its duties with credit to myself and to the best interests of the county.

I trust all my friends will be at the polls early on the 14 day of August and stay all day. Let us all pull together and put an end to ring rule.

Very respectfully,

W. W. CASON.

The Stationery of the Business Man

Is considered by many an index to that man's business character. Individuality is desirable; neatness and quality in the paper stock used are essentials. This office is equipped to supply you promptly, and at prices that will appeal to the purse, Office Stationery and Printing of any description that will compare favorably with that turned out by the big city printing offices.

A Trial Order Will Convince

The Princess Anne Times

The Times office has on file the application of a very responsible, and well-appearing middle aged man for a position as caretaker or watchman. This applicant we know personally and will guarantee entire satisfaction to the lucky man or firm securing his services. He is strictly sober, industrious and reliable.

The unsightly growth of brush, briars, weeds and jungled mass of vines, on and adjacent to the site of the old Princess Anne Hotel has been removed under supervision of Director G. W. Simpson of Chamber of Commerce. Now for that big hotel. Let the work proceed.

The rumor circulated about the Beach all day Thursday that a youth had his skull fractured by falling from a car near 24th street, proved false.

The gasoline pump at the city flume used for forcing sea water into the lakes has been idle since Saturday. Shortage of fresh water supply in the reservoir, required to work the pump, is assigned as the cause.

Under the inspiration of John Barleycorn a batch of negroes up at Oceana, Monday evening, got into a row. Knives and pistols were brought into action, some blood shed but nothing serious. No arrests as far as heard from.

Mrs. Ada Cooley asks us to say that she is prepared to accommodate a limited number of table boarders during the Encampment. She resides at 16th street and Holly avenue.

Latest advices from Mexico state that the Carranza forces have pushed their attacks on the Convention forces defending Mexico City up to within ten miles of the Capital. Their military trains are operating that close to the city.

Fire at Ocean View.

The fire that occurred at Ocean View at an early hour Wednesday morning resulted in a loss of about $5,000. Three cottages were burned and Trimble's grocery considerably damaged. The fire started in the Yale cottage, which was unoccupied, spread to the Wilder cottage and to the Trimble grocery. The volunteer fire company did good work and prevented further loss.

Tribute to a Norfolk Poet.

Elizabeth, the Belgian queen, in acknowledging receipt of a copy of his recent publication, "The Great War in Song and Satire," uses the following language, in French, in a note to Mr. George Frederic Vieth, of Norfolk.

La Panne, le 20 Juin, 1915.
Sir—I have received the poetic memento which you offered with such truly amiable expression. I am very sensible of your evidence of sympathy and tender to my sincere thanks.

Believe, I pray you, sir, in my sympathetic consideration.
ELIZABETH.
It is needless to add that Mr. Vieth duly prizes this letter as recognition of the merits of the poem.

If we could get money as easy as advice it would be a cinch and enable us to issue a daily edition.

Incidents of Thaw's Life Given Jury

The jury which is to pass on the sanity of Harry K. Thaw had an opportunity to study him for seven hours Wednesday while he was under severe cross-examination of lawyers for the State who are trying to prove he is suffering from paranoia.

Every incident of his life—from his school days to his marriage to Evelyn Nesbit, from the slaying of Stanford White to his trials on the charge of murder, and his life at Matteawan, was thrust before him in an effort to let the jury observe his mental attitude.

For the greater part of the ordeal Thaw seemed self-contained, but at times became palpably nervous, and on one occasion showed signs of anger. He was disposed to answer questions at length, and often made somewhat rambling hesitating legal arguments which Deputy Attorney-General Cook, his principal cross-examiner made no effort to stop. At other times he answered in brief, concise sentences, but often with a peculiar enunciation it was difficult to understand.

The Princess Anne Times

VOLUME I. NUMBER 9.

VIRGINIA BEACH, VIRGINIA, FRIDAY, JULY 9, 1915.

ONE DOLLAR PER YEAR

AFFAIRS AT THE BEACH

Summer quinness has no abating place about the beach.

Twenty-four days and then the primary.

It is better to be famous than rich, but we'd rather be both.

Dr. Man of Henderson, N. C. is the guest of Mrs. Homer Atkinson.

Fancy embroidery of all kinds neatly done by Mrs. A. J. Frenger, at Virginia Beach Hotel.

Dr. R. E. Whitehead of Kempeville was at the beach Monday and called at our sanctum. Come again.

Kerrill Gienapp, pictorial artist of repute, has come up the bay on an angling expedition.

Man's wisdom points out his own imperfections, while his ignorance magnifies virtues that do not exist.

One lone unfortunate occupied the beach last Monday. Only a drunk—that's all.

The name of Rev. R. J. Affrind of Kempeville is on our list and the gentleman will be heard from later on.

Candidates for office are now putting in their best looks. "Taking lay" while the sun shines, so it were.

Dress-making and all kinds of fancy sewing by Mrs. A. J. Frenger, at the Hotel Virginia Beach.

Brief biographical sketches, illustrated by photographic artwork will have place in this paper when the primary is over.

We have recently been blessed by a number of refreshing showers. They were needed and vegetation is now pushing forward by leaps and bounds.

That European war will prove a God-send to American fishermen. The crop of impoverished fishermen will be quite sufficient to go round.

Threatening aspect of the weather Monday kept many from the beach, otherwise the crowd would have broken all previous records.

Yes, we do job printing and solicit your work. Our facilities are ample to meet the wants of residents of the beach. Give us a trial.

The Rudolph cottage is filled to capacity with Norfolk and Portsmouth people attending the Encampment, and will remain ten days.

The Norfolk Southern electric division had all its available cars in service Monday. People coming and going from the cities and country from early morn till late at night.

The pressing club, in rear of W. T. Jarvis, is in full blast and doing new work. Give these boys a portion of your work, as they are experts. Andrew Pollard is proprietor.

Mr. P. B. Holland wants his advertisement in this newspaper. Would have had it running ere this but for illness. It will appear in the near future.

Dimensions considered, there's not a church in town that draws the number who assemble in the god-dance lobby by during meal openings. The room is not large enough to hold 'em.

Postmaster Griggs is overworked and underpaid. Red tape and useless requirements in postal "regulations" are as irksome as so-called civil service reform.

Mrs. J. J. Isoler of 14th street, entertained as her guest Misses Gertrude and Mauda Waterfield, Mrs. J. W. Ormstead and Miss Carrie Gimathead, Mrs. S. A. Hall, Mr. Wm. Baum and Mr. Wm. Hall.

An inspection of South Virginia beach has recently been made by parties seeking investment. While details have not been given plans for its development and easy connection with Virginia Beach were discussed.

Dr. G. M. Meredith comes before our readers in this issue with a change in his advertisement, to which attention is directed. His supply of drugs, medicines, etc., and such articles as are kept by first class drug stores is ample.

Dr. R. Whitehead, of Kempeville, owns a nice little cottage for summer purposes. It is west of and near Mauda's Hall. The doctor uses it for week-end outings at the seashore. Inexpensive and enjoyable.

A prominent citizen of Kempeville told us Monday this paper would be favored with a batch of interesting news items for its next issue, by a capable and interesting writer. Look out, this square with our desire and harmonies with those of our patrons.

COUNTY OF PRINCESS ANNE

Formed in 1691, Contains 285 Square Miles—Finest Section in State For Corn, Potatoes and Trucks—Noted for Fish, Oysters and Wild Fowl—Climate, Transportation, Schools, Churches. Virginia Beach, Etc.

The "Hand Book" of Virginia, published by the Department of Agriculture and Immigration at Richmond, under supervision of George W. Koimer, Commissioner, is on our table. It is printed on good paper, embellished with a number of illustrations and contains much valuable information pertaining to Virginia and its resources.

There are 100 counties in the State, and a brief description of each one of the hundred counties is given. From the chapter devoted to the county of Princess Anne we take the following: Princess Anne—This county was formed in 1691 from Norfolk county and lies in the extreme Southeast corner of the State, 110 miles Southeast of Richmond. It contains an area of 285 square miles.

The surface is level, soil dark loam, marshy and sandy in some sections—with red clay sub-soil, easily tilled and generally productive, especially the swamp lands in Holland swamp, Eastern Shore swamp and Blackwater. There are also some fine lands on the borders of the creeks and inlets. Farm products are corn, oats, potatoes and trucks.

The people are very extensively engaged in the latter, and large quantities of vegetables and fruits are annually shipped to the northern markets. For general trucks this is one of the finest sections of the State, especially the Pungo district.

This county is noted for its fish—notably the catches in Back bay—and oysters of unequal quality; and wild fowls of great variety are found in large quantities, the shipments of which produce large revenues to its citizens.

Nature has been exceedingly lavish to this county in the bestowal of natural products, not only in large extent but of superior quality. This is the home of the renowned Lynnhaven oysters and canvas-back ducks and other water fowl; the latter being in such abundance as to make gunning at certain seasons quite a profitable industry. Stock raising is principally restricted to the raising of cows for dairy and family purposes, although many stock cattle are fed. Considerable attention is paid to hogs.

Transportation facilities are ample and convenient to all sections of the county by rail and the numerous navigable bays and rivers border the ocean front of over twenty miles. These afford very superior market advantages.

Virginia Beach, a famous and attractive summer resort on the Atlantic shore, is in this county. It is connected with Norfolk by two routes of the electric division of the Norfolk Southern railway, one of which being by way of Cape Henry.

The timber consists of pine, cypress, oak, gum, cedar, elm, etc. North river, running south, and the various sounds, bays and creeks afford ample water supply and drainage. Barrels, boxes and crates are manufactured, also large quantities of cypress shingles.

The climate is temperate and healthy and water fine in nearly all sections. Churches and schools are numerous and conveniently distributed. The county is well supplied with telephone communication, and the mail facilities are good.

Princess Anne is the county seat.

Need of Public Hall for Beach.

Inquiring as to the meaning of a pile of brick lying near the corner of a lot on 17th street near the ocean, this paper was informed that Dr. E. H. Morrison was the person to answer. Dr. Morrison not being in reach, and upon further questioning, it was suggested that one of the needs and wants of the Beach was a public hall—that Dr. Morrison contemplated erecting a substantial building on the lot in question, but had not determined its kind. "But," said the party addressed, "a public hall is just what we need and it will pay; the location is just right; there is not a decent place in town for public meetings—church meetings, social dances, church fairs, public gatherings, committee meetings and so on ad infinitum. The beach is growing and will grow fast and faster; the big hotel will be built and an all year patronage secured; we will have a boulevard to Norfolk and the fort at Cape Henry will add to our importance. Yes, I firmly believe Dr. Morrison will hit the nail on the head if he uses that lot for the building of a public hall on one of its floors, with stores and offices above and below."

Baptist Young People's Union.

The following program will be observed Sunday by the Baptist Young People's Union of Virginia: Sunrise Worship on the pier at 6:30 a. m. to 11 a. m.—J. P. Leavelle, By Baptists Convention of Organized Classes. 11:30 a. m.—Special Music. 11:30 a. m.—Address, "The Relation of the B. Y. P. U. and Baptist Church," J. P. Leavelle. 11:30 a. m.—Special Music. 12:30 p. m.—Sermon, Dr. B. D. Gray. 3:30 p. m.—Song and prayer. 3:35 p. m.—Report of nominating committee. Miscellaneous business. 5:30 p. m.—Symposium: Selected speakers. The B. Y. P. U. spirit. The B. Y. P. U. pledge. The B. Y. P. U. emblem. 8:00 p. m.—Baptist Convention of Organized Classes. 8:30 p. m.—Demonstration services. 8:35 p. m.—Special music—Wake Forest Faculty Quartet. 8:30 p. m.—Sermon by Dr. John R. Stamey—"Solomon in all his glory."

Bright Hotel Outlook.

The persistent and untiring energy on the part of the Chamber of Commerce, aided by public spirited citizens of the Beach, seem to give assurances that the projected hotel will be erected. Most of the required subscriptions were secured some time ago. The balance wanted was not large. When the situation was brought to the attention of prominent Norfolk business men enough was conditionally pledged by them to make up the deficit. The conditions it is said were not serious and no difficulty was expected in their compliance. This, it is believed, removes all doubt as to the building of the hotel. Now for a long pull, a strong pull and a pull all together.

Ten Dollars and Costs.

An assault and battery case was heard before Squire Israel Griggs Wednesday afternoon July 7th, in which James B. Woodhouse was plaintiff and John N. Parker defendant, both parties hailing from Norfolk. They had previously attended a dance at the Casino, where, it seems, the trouble originated but later culminated some distance from the Casino. A number of witnesses were heard by Judge Griggs, who adjudged the defendant guilty and imposed a fine of $10 and costs.

THE LUCKY FISHERMEN.

By Catch Wednesday Morning—Unprofitable Season Seems Broken—Chance to Redeem Early Losses—400 Pounds of Fish.

The half dozen or so of fishermen at the south end of the Beach had a turn for the better in their "catch" Wednesday, when a hundred to one hundred and fifty barrels, all told, were landed. While these figures are not by any means large they are good and encourage the hope that our fishermen have reached the limit of their unprofitable business and that from now on they may be able to make up for disasters sustained in the early spring when severe and repeated storms caused the loss of thousands of dollars to poles and nets and demoralized or drove the fish from the grounds to other waters. The "catch" Wednesday embraced the usual variety of food fish common to the Beach.

Embraced in the haul was a specimen of an unknown variety to fishing people about the Beach. Those who professed to know said it was a "cow fish," whatever that may mean. It was caught by the crew of Capt. W. A. Payne, who made arrangements to convey it to the ocean front on 14th street where it will be placed on exhibition. It will weigh about 400 pounds and is worth seeing. An ungainly looking thing.

Proceedings Before Squire Griggs.

Several cases were heard Thursday before Justice Israel Griggs. They resulted in compromise. The court washed in the town hall, a considerable number of spectators being in attendance.

The first case was that of "The Simple Account Book Sales Co." versus A. A. Johnston. Judgment against defendant for $45. The suit of George & Co., incorporated, Baltimore meat dealers, against the B. P. Holland Co. of Virginia Beach, was settled by Mr. Holland agreeing to pay $23.85. In a statement before the court Mr. Holland made it clear that he only closed the suit to get rid of litigation on account of ill health; that the agreement he had with the George Company had not been complied with and that said company was justly indebted to him.

A Pitiful Sight.

The knee-deep sand in wagon roads about the Beach is as hard on horse-flesh as the mud roads of the county after a month's rain. It is a pitiful sight to see the poor animals under the lash of a merciless driver struggling to draw their loads all to heavy. Be merciful to your dumb animals. They can hear, can see and feel as acutely as you, but cannot talk. Good roads in city, good roads in country, good roads every where, that's the slogan of the Times. It's kindness to your horses and money in your pocket.

Dr. Whitehead's Announcement.

Dr. R. Whitehead of Kempeville is seeking legislative honors. His card of announcement appears elsewhere in this paper. He is a well-known practicing physician and held in high esteem. He announces Good Roads, Good Schools and the enactment of laws putting into practical operation State-Wide Prohibition as his platform.

THE BAPTIST ENCAMPMENT

Began its 1915 Week Tuesday, July 6th—Many Workers Taking Part—Session To Last Ten Days.

The Virginia Baptist Encampment, which will hold a ten-day session, began its work in its several departments Tuesday, July 6th, under promising auspices, many religious workers both from Virginia and surrounding States being in attendance. The training school for Sunday School and B. Y. P. U. Workers opened its several divisions under leadership of Mrs. Antiochete Abernathy Lamoreaux.

The Pastors' Conference, Rev. George W. McDaniel, D. D., leader, began its daily sessions at 10 o'clock in the Baptist Church. The Chautauque lectures series began Tuesday night with a lecture by Dr. Clinton N. Howard of Rochester, N. Y., on "Why God Made a Woman."

The Woman's Missionary Union Conference, Mrs. Julian P. Thomas, of Richmond, Director, opened its work by a discussion of "Mission Study," by Mrs. H. B. Cross of Staunton.

The Vacation Bible School began its work in the Beach public school building, under Rev. H. B. Cross, director.

The other features of the Encampment are the Annual Convention of the Baptist Y. P. U. and the Convention of Baptist Organized Classes, both of which occur on Saturday and Sunday.

Rev. Dr. Stratton's address inaugurating the Encampment was a strikingly opportune and pleasant feature of the opening session.

Princess Anne A. F. and A. M.

Princess Anne Lodge No. 25 A. F. and A. M., which own an excellent hall at the Court House had its stated communication on the 7th instant at 2 o'clock in the afternoon. This lodge is made up for the most part of country people, many of whom are remote, hence it convenes in the afternoon. It has sturdy material, numbers well on to a hundred and is flourishing.

Virginia Beach Lodge No. 274, A. F. and A. M., will hold its stated July communication in Mason Hall, on Wednesday, July 14th. Routine business.

Notes Personal and Otherwise

Miss Octavia Alpieter of the Maryland school for the blind, is at the Atkinson cottage.

Mrs. Anne Garry and Master Turnbull Garry of Richmond are visiting at the Morrison cottage.

Mrs. James Weisiger, Mrs. R. D. Hall and Miss Virginia Hall are spending some time at Virginia Beach.

Mrs. M. W. Brown of Norfolk is visiting her sister-in-law, Mrs. E. B. Kelley.

The warble was refrained Thursday afternoon by a generous summer shower. It was needed.

A Norfolk page with monk and dogman is at the Beach angling the juvenile population.

Mrs. James S. Greaves and family are at the Beach for the summer stopping at the Skagway cottage.

We regret that Mr. M. S. Marmaduke continues ill at his home on Cypress Avenue.

Maj. A. M. Wheeler, who is a guest at the Robert E. Lee cottage, gave us a friendly call Friday. Come again, major.

The Norfolk Southern has a force at work removing and burning brush and weeds along its right-of-way at the Beach. Big improvement.

Mrs. S. A. Davis and Miss Nell Hurch of Richmond, who are on the Baptist Mission Board, are at the Atkinson cottage.

Two Sunday schools from Norfolk had their opening Wednesday—the Park Avenue and the Knox Presbyterian schools.

Harry McChoy of Norfolk was here Thursday on legal business. He is senior member of the law firm of McChoy, Smith and Betty, Norfolk.

Mrs. Dr. Land and Miss Louise Land have been absent from the Beach several months on an extensive sight-seeing tour.

The Ladies Aid Society did not serve dinner at the Casino last Monday because they were disappointed in securing the necessary equipment ordered for their table.

Mrs. J. B. Leigh (nee Mary Atkinson and little son and husband) will spend the remainder of the season on his mother, Mrs. Homer Atkinson.

Joe S. Shelton, Miss Katherine Buckle, Rev. J. F. Love, Richmond, Miss M. W. Anderson Chatham, Mrs. Anne Blair try York, are stopping at the Carrington.

The little cottage of Miss Annie Pierce of Norfolk, on twenty-second street is nearing completion, under the energetic strokes of Contractor Johnson.

The cottage on Atlantic street and in rear of the Ferebee Hotel, occupied by several Petersburg ladies, recently considerably damaged by fire, is being repaired.

Squire Griggs held two sessions of court in the council chamber this week. He presides with dignity and simplicity and mete out justice with an even hand.

Mr. and Mrs. Carolyn of Norfolk came to the Beach Thursday for a week-end outing, and are stopping at the Rudolphs. Mr. Carman is an old newspaper man and called at our sanctum.

Miss Kate Woolfolk of Richmond has taken the Robert E. Lee cottage for the season and securing business. Among registered guests are Rev. Mr. Downing and Misses, delegates from Appomattox and Maj. A. M. Wheeler.

The banner thrown across 11th st. by the Chamber of Commerce, extending a hearty "welcome" to the Baptist Encampment attracts due attention, and elicits favorable comment. Mr. F. T. Cooley had the details in charge and did his work well.

Sulphate of iron is now being applied to grass and other vegetable growth prevailing in the town lakes and marring their beauty. The action of this mineral in destroying vegetation is said to be effective, but not injurious to fish.

Floyd J. Triplett was at the Beach Monday at the Casino. He is a citizen of Plymouth, N. C., and publisher of the Independent. He is giving his readers a high-toned publication and should be accorded liberal support.

WESTMORELAND DAVIS FOR GOVERNOR.

Announcement has been made that the honors for the Virginia Democratic gubernatorial nomination in 1937 will be shared with Messrs. Taylor Ellyson and Garland Pollard by Mr. Westmoreland Davis of Loudoun county. This will make a three-cornered race in which the voters of the State will have difficulty in choosing the best man from among a trio of most excellent citizens and public servants.

While Mr. Davis has not yet had time to impress his views in detail upon subjects at issue, yet his past utterances and fine public record give ample evidence that he is a statesman fully acquainted with the needs of the Commonwealth and of a virile personality and energy to put into effect whatever new measures of legislation he may inspire.

We are assured that Mr. Davis is a "practical" man. That much abused term often covers the man of one idea with the mantle of adequacy and gives to mere plodder a certificate of recommendation. The highways and the byways are full of merely "practical" men who accomplish nothing but their own petty and selfish purposes. When elevated by chance or fortune to positions for which by nature and culture they are unfitted these "practical" persons follow the beaten track of conservatism, which is invariably the refuge of mediocrity that leads to stagnation. These "practical" people have become one of the great afflictions of the age, and especially in political affairs. The really practical man in high public position is one endowed with inspiration and idealism, one who can move out of the rut and not only keep step with progress but show the way.

Mr. Davis is a farmer and proud of his profession, holding that agriculture in its higher aspects is second to none, and that upon agricultural development, in the last analysis, is to be found the stimulus and security for a sound social and financial system. He is an advocate of scientific and intensified farming. He is a friend of the tiller of the soil and has scant patience with the tiller of the soil of which latter type there are all too many in the South.

Mr. Davis has long been a leader in the Good Roads and Tax Reform movements and also is a champion in the cause of conservation of Commonwealth resources and economy in public affairs. These are very vital issues to the people of Virginia.

Mr. Davis' opponents for the high office of Governor are both men of sterling worth and integrity but to a certain extent they appear to be of that ultra conservative school which since the war has signally failed to secure to this State the dignity and position which its resources and its importance demand. Attorney-General Pollard is beyond all question a man of splendid legal ability and lofty character, but there are many who would hesitate to invest him with greater powers than he now possesses because his alleged overzealousness in so-called "reform" and prohibition movements in which he has evidenced a somewhat ruthless disregard of the rights and privileges of the minority, against which influences the tide of opposition is slowly but surely rising.

If Mr. Davis will give the people of Virginia assurances that he will confine his activities to constructive measures looking solely to the business of the State, and eschew the side issues of private feuds and factions, of late years so clamorously insistent, he will undoubtedly make a strong bid for the favor of the people of Virginia. We await his platform with interest.

THE HARRISON ANTI-NARCOTIC FEDERAL LAW.

During the last session of Congress an individual from Alabama, clothed with a power and authority to inspire legislation one would think impossible but to a Czar or Sultan, succeeded in passing the most drastic and despotic measure upon a helpless and friendless minority of American citizens that our frantic and nefarious prohibitive activities can show, and had previously long led the world in this respect. As a result it is pointed out by a writer in one of the New York newspapers that upon a conservative estimate over twenty-seven thousand persons have already been deprived of their lives through the operation of this law, and that quite double, that number have been driven hopelessly insane. Of course it is possible to kill any disease by killing the patient and for the first time in human history we are presented with the spectacle of legislation by a civilized government—one indeed boasting itself as the protector and refuge of life, liberty and happiness—deliberately adopting a policy of the ruthless and brutal elimination of what it deems the "undue." Worst of all, the newspapers and the medical fraternity seem to be passive parties to a national crime that will go down in history, as the most atrocious and tyrannical ever perpetrated.

VIRGINIA BEACH THE MECCA.

Picnics and excursions from all sections of the State is the order of the day at Virginia Beach. Daily increasing crowds follow the rise of the temperature to the seashore. Here where the land smiles down upon the sea and the sea laughs back at the land is the ideal spot of the Atlantic coast. The prevailing southwest winds that bring the ozone of vast pine forests to the very ocean's rim is a source of surprise to all visitors and a phenomenon unknown to very few seaside resorts of the world. Except at rare intervals during the winter storms the boisterous sea winds of other coast resorts are unknown here.

FUNERAL OF GEN. DIAZ.

The funeral of Gen. Porfirio Diaz, who died in Paris a few days ago, was held in that city Monday at the Catholic church of St. Honore d'Eylan, and was largely attended, including representatives of the government of France, Paris, the Mexican government, the Ecuadorian minister to France and military attaches of the Japanese government.

The body of the late Mexican president was deposited in the vault of the church, where it will await shipment to America when conditions will permit.

Taking of the Bastille.

The celebration of July 4, 1915, is among the things that were in the United States, but what the Fourth is to Americans the 14th of July has the same significance to the Frenchman.

The French army that came to assist the American colonies in the Revolutionary struggle returned to their own country with a love for republican institutions. This, combined with other causes, principally the accumulated wrongs inflicted on the people of France for many centuries, by Kings and Nobles, raised a storm which swept from that beautiful land, forever, all traces of feudalism. The Bastille was a strong fortress and prison in the city of Paris, in the gloomy and mysterious cells of which many a poor victim of arbitrary power expiated some offense to Monarch or Noble, or perhaps some fancied slight to a powerful and vindictive courtier.

On the 14th of July, 1789, the people of Paris arose in their strength and, after a fierce and bloody struggle got possession of and destroyed this last stronghold of feudalism and tyranny in France.

The key of the Bastille was sent to George Washington, then at the zenith of his fame. The anniversary of the destruction of this hideous prison is celebrated joyously by the French people.

Digging Their Own Graves.

(James Hervey Clarke.)

It is a sad spectacle to see a nation of people disintegrating and wasting away through sheer inability for self-government.

Yet that is just the condition that prevails in Mexico, and will continue until the United States assumes the burden, stamps out anarchy and brigandage, and places the republic upon a substantial working basis.

Kindness and leaves of bread will not avail, for the Mexicans themselves have clearly demonstrated their utter incapacity for self-government and their entire indifference to the higher tenets of humanity.

Mexico totters upon the brink of its open grave, and only the strong-armed hand of the United States can save it from its self-inflicted fate.

Should we succor the starving and rescue the perishing at the point of the bayonet, or should we abandon a suffering and bleeding people to their inevitable fate?

Let Them Feel The Sun.

The sun's rays make sunny children. It brightens their eyes and broadens their smiles and puts the joy of life into their little souls. It strengthens their minds and develops their physique and lays the foundation for a career of honor and usefulness in the school of life.

Let the kiddies bask in the sun. Let its rays descend upon them that in after years their souls may radiate the joys of life to those who follow in their footsteps.

For the sun is our most learned doctor, our most profound preacher, and the greatest builder and rejuvenator of the human race.

And an hour in the sun is more potent than an eternity in the shadows.

Won't Testify Against Husband.

Evelyn Nesbitt Thaw, summoned to testify against Harry K. Thaw, her husband, in his trial before a jury to determine his mental condition, has made emphatic announcement that she will not testify against her husband under any circumstances. She says she will stand upon her constitutional rights.

One dollar will bring you the Times for a year.

The Doctor.

When a young man, by diligence and industry, struggles through a medical school and later passes the State board of examiners, it does not necessarily follow that he knows the twin trades of medicine and surgery from cover to cover. It merely signifies that he has acquired the right to practice medicine without interference from the sheriff.

No one speaks of the doctor's business as "healing," rather, the trade is referred to as "practicing" medicine. The word practice is used advisedly. One practices in order to become proficient in any art or sport. A doctor practices on unsuspecting humans, and at length reduces a theory to a fact of personal experience.

From this it would seem that the older the doctor, the better his work. And this would indeed be true except for the fact that the science of medicine never stays in one spot overnight. Each morning shows a fresh advance and brings to light a new piece of information about the power of drugs, or a new system of coating the liver with floor varnish.

Some old doctors, by continued study, keep up with the march of events, but others are kept too busy curing belly-aches and setting fractures in the good old-fashioned way, to familiarize themselves with the pet name of every new microbe.

The modern doctor is a crank about fresh air and sunshine and good water; and whereas the old-timer considered whiskey and morphine the rod and staff of the profession, his modern brother shuns these two as a pestilence.

Medical men have made great strides in recent years; they use fewer doses and more cleanliness than of yore; they prevent nine-tenths of the old-fashioned diseases, and cure the other tenth by cutting out some portion of the patient's clock work and a large portion of his bank account.

They have undoubtedly saved more people than they have killed, and are therefore entitled to credit, but there will be no public demonstration in their favor until they cure cancer, prevent tuberculosis, and discover the microbe that causes a woman to talk about her neighbor.

Fourth of July Fatalities.

Nineteen persons dead and 903 injured was the sacrifice in the United States to the two days' celebration of Fourth of July this year. In 1914 there were 12 killed and 879 injured.

The Norwegian press eulogizes the American Government for asking Germany to modify her submarine policy. Quite a number of Norwegian ships have been torpedoed by German submarines, hence the eulogies.

Distressing conditions exist among Mexico's population. Latest advices state that 20,000 persons were on the verge of starvation in Yucatan.

A CARD.

To My Fellow Citizens of Princess Anne County, Virginia:

I hereby announce myself a candidate for Treasurer of Princess Anne County, Va. subject to the Democratic Primary on August 3rd.

In making this announcement I take occasion to refer to the part I took in the work of rescuing Princess Anne from the humiliation and disgrace of Negro rule, which then threatened our County.

It was then I served my people, and it is for them to say how well I did the work. Was Chairman of the Democratic County Committee for 23 years, for 23 years I served as Election Judge and for 23 years as Poll Book Commissioner. And it was during these years I had many disagreeable duties to discharge, as many will remember. On one occasion on court day at Princess Anne Courthouse two Negroes—Hodges and Land—were making violent speeches against the white people of the County. John Nash came to me and said if he had twenty men he would take them from the stand myself. I told him to follow me and I would take them from the stand myself. I knocked Hodges from the stand and Land jumped over the fence, both leaving their hats in their flight.

When Tony Wilson was a Negro registered in Kempville district, I was asked what should be done. I told my friends Tony had either to go out of office voluntarily or else he would disappear. The first case he had to try was at Princess Anne Court House. When he called his court to order I walked into the court room with a rope on my shoulder. After a while I said to Tony: "What the devil do you know about law?" He said: "Sah?" I then said to him: "Do you see this rope?" He said: "Yes sah, I've been watching that rope some time and I want to get rid of this office." I told him if he did, to follow me. We then went to Judge Kellum's office, and Tony said: "Judge Kellum, this here office I've got I want to get rid of it." Judge Kellum told him if he did, to sign "these papers." Tony then said to me: "Mr. Cason, you ain't going to hang me now, are you?" I said to him that I had not said I was going to hang him, but had simply asked if he had not seen the rope over my shoulder.

On another occasion, it being court day, and the next day, Tuesday, being election day, James A. McAlpin and myself were in the Court House yard when Jesse H. Caffee and his brother B. T. Caffee, who were running a hotel at Princess Anne, came up and said to me: "Walter, my dining room is full of Negroes and demand dinner, and my family is terribly frightened, won't you get a crowd and drive them out?" I pulled a pistol from James A. McAlpin's pocket, walked into the dining room alone and said: "I understand you Negroes want dinner. I have dinner enough in this gun for you all. The door was not large enough for them to get out. They were piled up four or five deep at the door."

On the following night I was at Kempville and James H. Bonney sent me word not to come to the Court House the next morning to serve as Judge of Election, as the Negroes would be there who said they intended to take my life. I borrowed a shot gun and a dozen shot day rode to the Court House. There I found James H. Bonney and a yard full of Negroes. I drove to the back door of the hotel and got out of the bugs, making the remark: "I understand you black devil niggers to take my life, and before taking it I am going to kill some of you." I then proceeded to put some shells in my gun. James H. Bonney came out in his night clothes and tried to pull me in the house. I said to him, "No, let me shoot them." His wife then came out, and yielding to her wishes, I went into the house, but as soon as I was inside Mr. Bonney locked the door, saying that I was the biggest fool he ever saw, as the Negroes had been there all night planning to kill me.

When the sun rose I observed that this Negro mob were running and falling over fences in every direction. I was one of the Judges at the polls. About 10 o'clock John Caphart, a Negro, and one of the leaders of his race in Princess Anne, drove up with five vacant heads of Negroes to vote. When the voting of whites was slack, I voted two heads of Negroes. By that time there was a rush of whites to the polls. Then I said to Caphart that as he had voted 12 Negroes, and as there was now a rush of white voters I was going to vote them, one by one. He said no, that he had to vote his men and then go back and get more voters, and thereupon a rush was made for the window, Caphart being in front.

I then told Caphart that if he did not move back and allow the white voters a chance I would leave his window and come out and knock him down. The Negro laughed and said: "Mr. Cason, I have never been knocked down in my life. I refused to get out of the window when E. E. Burroughs, one of the Judges of Election, said: 'Walter, don't you go out there—those Negroes will kill you.' I got out of the window and said to Caphart: 'We are friends are we not?' 'Yes, sir.' You asked me to knock you down and I like to accommodate my friends." Down went Caphart, falling at the window where the voting was being done. E. E. Burroughs looked out of the window and said: "Walter, has he voted?" I said no. Burroughs then remarked that he would never vote again, that he was dead. I crawled back to my place inside and told our boys to come on and vote, as it was not necessary to stop because there was a dead Negro. No one would come up to the window to vote on account of the Negro lying there, so I went out and pulled him around the corner of the Court House, where Dr. Wright took charge of him.

Six hours later some one came to me and said that Caphart wanted to see me. On going to where he was I found him sitting up and leaning against the Court House. He said: "Mr. Cason, are you mad with me?" When I told him I was not, he said he would never again ask me to knock him down, that he had seen more stars when I hit him than he has ever witnessed in the firmament.

At the next election this same Negro, Caphart, was appointed a Judge of election. A few minutes before sundown the following day I got out of the window to go to Bonney's for a jump so as to see how to count the ballots, making the remark as I left for the boys not to leave too soon after the polls had been closed, as game fun was to be had. I heard such a fuss and so much laughing in the polling room that I went back and asked what the trouble was. They said Caphart had gone out of the back window, saying he knew what that meant, and that they were going to kill him there that night.

As to the correctness of the foregoing statements, I respectfully refer to the following gentlemen, well known citizens: T. H. Honney, A. T. Herbert, J. J. Herriek, Randolph Ward, O. B. Myers, Solomon Bonney, Judge J. M. Keeling, E. E. Burruss, R. L. Almond, Martin Whitehead, John Earle, Whitehead, Major J. T. Woodhouse, J. O. Land, J. M. Malbon, J. T. Malbon, K. W. Kweil, J. F. Woodhouse.

And now, fellow-citizens, I submit that had it not been for prompt and vigorous action at a critical period in the political history of our county I would have been over-run by a horde of ignorant and vicious Negro officials, and that the part I played to avert such calamity was in obedience to a sacred duty—a duty I owed my wife and children—aye, the family of every white citizen of Princess Anne County.

And now, at the age of 44 years, I would as quickly resent in the most emphatic and vigorous manner any similar outrage upon the white manhood and womanhood of my County as I did in younger life.

In conclusion, I beg to assure the good people of Princess Anne County that if they elect me to serve them as Treasurer, that I will give the office my undivided and personal attention and endeavor to discharge its duties with credit to myself and to the best interests of the county.

I trust all my friends will be at the polls early on the 14th day of August and stay all day. Let us all put together and put an end to ring rule.

Very respectfully,

W. W. CASON.

The Princess Anne Times

The Times office has on file the application of a very responsible and neat appearing middle aged man for a position as caretaker or watchman. This applicant we know personally and will guarantee entire satisfaction to the lucky man or firm securing his services. He is strictly sober, industrious and reliable.

The unsightly growth of brush, briars, weeds and jungled mass of vines, on and adjacent to the site of the old Princess Anne Hotel has been removed under supervision of Director G. W. Simpson of Chamber of Commerce. Now for that big hotel. Let the work proceed.

The rumor circulated about the Beach all day Thursday that a youth had his skull fractured by falling from a car near 24th street, proved false.

The gasoline pump at the city flume used for forcing sea water into the lakes has been idle since Saturday. Shortage of fresh water supply in the reservoir, required to work the pump, is assigned as the cause.

Under the inspiration of John Barleycorn a batch of negroes up at Oceana, Monday evening, got into a row. Knives and pistols were brought into action, some blood shed but nothing serious. No arrests as far as heard from.

Mrs. Ada Cooley asks us to say that she is prepared to accommodate a limited number of table boarders during the Encampment. She resides at 16th street and Holly avenue.

Latest advices from Mexico state that the Carranza forces have pushed their attacks on the Convention forces defending Mexico City up to within ten miles of the Capital. Their military trains are operating that close to the city.

Free P. A. Vegetables.

A branch of the Times office down in the lower end of town was made happy the other day by a big basket of vegetables sent as a sample of the product of a Princess Anne garden. We without the name of the donor purposely. These sample baskets never refused, and when a sufficient number of them arrives we'll announce the name of the champion vegetable raiser. Next!

Fire at Ocean View.

The fire that occurred at Ocean View at an early hour Wednesday morning resulted in a loss of about $5,000. Three cottages were burned and Trimble's grocery considerably damaged. The fire started in the Yale cottage, which was unoccupied, spread to the Wilder cottage and to the Trimble grocery. The volunteer fire company did good work and prevented further loss.

Tribute to a Norfolk Poet.

Elizabeth, the Belgian queen, in acknowledging receipt of a copy of his recent publication, "The Great War in Song and Satire," uses the following language, in French, in a note to Mr. George Frederic Viott, of Norfolk.

La Panne, le 20 Juin, 1915.
Sir—I have received the poetic memento which you offered with such truly amiable expression. I am very sensible of your evidence of sympathy and tender you my sincere thanks.

Believe, I pray you, sir, in my sympathetic consideration.
ELIZABETH.

It is needless to add that Mr. Viott duly prizes this letter as recognition of the merits of the poem.

Incidents of Thaw's Life Given Jury

The jury which is to pass on the sanity of Harry K. Thaw had an opportunity to study him for seven hours Wednesday while he was under severe cross-examination of lawyers for the State who are trying to prove he is suffering from paranoia.

Every incident of his life—from his school days to his marriage to Evelyn Nesbit, from the slaying of Stanford White to his trials on the charge of murder, and his life at Matteawan, was thrust before him in an effort to let the jury observe his mental attitude.

For the greater part of the ordeal Thaw seemed self-contained, but at times became palpably nervous, and on one occasion showed signs of anger. He was disposed to answer questions at length, and often made somewhat rambling hesitating legal arguments which Deputy Attorney-General Cook, his principal cross-examiner made no effort to stop. At other times he answered in brief, concise sentences, but often with a peculiar enunciation it was difficult to understand.

VIRGINIA BEACH, VIRGINIA, FRIDAY, JULY 16, 1915

ONE DOLLAR PER YEAR

AFFAIRS AT THE BEACH

The Wilson Cottage is fitted to its capacity.

The Percebe has every room in the building filled.

Robert Pannell of New York is on a visit to his mother at the Wild Rose.

The Blue Sea cottage has been filled through the inclement.

Mrs. Logue of the Driftwood said her cottage was full to the roof.

The corrected schedule of the Norfolk Southern appears in this issue.

Miss Samuel McMillan of Petersburg has taken the Astorian Cottage for the summer.

Dr. and Mrs. Mascoe and Miss Evelyn Van Meter of Lexington, Ky., are at the Hancock Cottage.

We are glad to report our local fishermen are still having luck—though the "runs" are not as large as desired.

Mrs. Nellie Higgins and Mrs. William Higgins and grand-daughters, of Norfolk are visiting at Mr. Allen's.

Miss Carol Simpson has gone on a visit of several weeks to Miss Mary Farrell of Nanamoud county.

Rev. George Claiborne of Georgia, clannish of Rev. Minger, held services in Gallie Chapel last Sunday.

Mrs. Barton Myers, who underwent an operation at a Norfolk hospital, is much improved.

Tony Sneed, colored, who has a house and five acres near Oceana, spent Thursday night in the Beach Jail for being drunk and disorderly.

Miss A. A. Day of Norfolk, Mrs. F. B. Carpenter of New York, Mrs. H. H. Pomeroy of Philadelphia are at the Picochates.

Mrs. Tabb, Mr. Rother, Miss Martha Chambers and Mr. Kale, Mr. Hisco, Mrs. W. R. Hampton, of Plymouth, N. C., are at the Hancock.

The chuckle's chuckle: chuckle of the town pump is heard again forcing water into Lake Holly. It is a nuisance to residents, but death to fleas.

Major Wheeler, at the Robert E. Lee cottage, is now limping around with an injured limb received while in bathing.

Postmaster Griggs has been nursing a lame arm the past week. As it is worth five dollars he gets little sympathy.

Sunday, July 18, the first regiment will arrive at the Beach and go into camp at the Little Range, Col. Perry, commanding.

Ray rooms are closed on Saturdays in Sweden because it is pay day, and the Savings Banks are open until midnight.

Contractor R. E. Johnson went up to Petersburg Wednesday to look after his building operations. He has under way the erection of 22 houses.

That free oral roast given by Mr. Kaitley at the Raleigh every Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday evening at 8 p. m., is becoming quite popular.

Dr. Morrison, health officer, has ordered a thorough overhauling of the Town Jail to meet sanitary conditions. Mr. Cooley has charge of the painting and varnishing end.

General Passenger Agent Leard of the Norfolk Southern was at the Beach Tuesday. He failed, though, to take a peep into our sanctum. The string hangs out for you.

Alger Woolfolk of Richmond, president of the Virginia State Teachers Association, is visiting his sister, Miss Kate Woolfolk at Robert E. Lee Cottage.

Huckleberries are in abundance in the "desert" section of Cape Henry. They are being eagerly sought by housekeepers and others for miles around.

Deputy Clerk Woodhouse of the Court House, enjoys his week-end visits to the Beach to the limit. He is always greeted here with a genuine welcome.

Rev. Mr. Hitts asks us to announce that on Sunday, July 18, there will be Sunday School at ten o'clock in the morning and preaching at 8 o'clock at night. Strangers made welcome.

The Baptist people who have had their headquarters at the Arlington left Wednesday. Their rooms had scarcely been vacated before they were engaged by other guests. Straws show how the wind blows.

COURT PROCEEDINGS.

W. T. Etheridge vs. Norfolk County Water Company—Arguments Concluded and Case Submitted.

The May term of Princess Anne circuit court resumed business Monday, July 12th, His Honor, Judge B. D. White, presiding. This special session had been set for the hearing of the suit of W. T. Etheridge against the Norfolk County Water Company. Mr. Etheridge claimed that his farm had been injured by said company to the extent of $7,000, and that his crops had been hurt $2,183.

The hearing in this suit was commenced Thursday, July 8, a number of witnesses, expert and otherwise, having consumed the intervening time—one day of which was used by the jurors visiting the scene of the alleged damages. Our reporter not having been present to hear the testimony given before the jurors, can make no comments thereon.

On Monday, owing to intense heat, court convened outside the court room, the Judge and jurors occupying the south end of the porch of the court house building, while spectators and interested parties had provided themselves with chairs and were seated on the green facing the court.

The following jurors answered to their names: W. G. Avery, R. R. Porter, J. J. Morrisett, T. C. Menden, Claud Eaton, H. C. Flanagan, John H. James.

As soon as the formalities of opening had been concluded the attorneys in the case began their arguments. Tomlin and Maupin for plaintiff and Pender and Pender for defendants. At the conclusion of the several speeches the case was turned over to the jury.

There are two other suits pending against the Norfolk Water Company for alleged damages. The time for the trial of the one of W. E. Wood will be fixed Tuesday, July 20. No date has been mentioned for the other suit, which is brought by John C. Wood.

Report on Mosquitoes

Captain T. K. Warrick, Inspector of the Virginia National Guard, who is stopping at the Drinkwater cottage, recently made an examination of conditions at and near Lake Holly with reference to the mosquito problem. Capt. Warrick was accompanied by Mr. Drinkwater in looking over the situation. These gentlemen found that Lake Holly was exceptionally free from the mosquito nuisance, and gave the opinion that the recent application of sulphate of iron and the pumping of sea water into the Lake was the agency in destroying them. An examination of premises in the vicinity disclosed only two breeding points—pools of water that had not received attention. These were treated with sulphate of iron.

The improved condition was favorably commented upon and much credit awarded by Inspector Warrick for the good work the Chamber of Commerce had done in behalf of the people of Virginia Beach.

Harry R. Houston of Hampton has been declared the Democratic nominee for the Legislature. He had no opposition.

And why should Edwin J. Smith worry?

PRIMARY CANDIDATES.

List of Candidates Whose Names Will Appear on the Ballots—the Campaign Unusually Quiet.

The following comprises the list of candidates seeking election at the Princess Anne primary to be held on August 3d, 1915.

For the Legislature—Dr. R. E. Whitehead, of Kempville; O. A. Baum, of Vine.

Treasurer—J. E. Old, of Lynnhaven; Walter W. Cason, of Virginia Beach.

Commonwealth's Attorney—Edwin J. Smith, Virginia Beach, (no opposition).

Sheriff—Paul W. Ackiss, Back Bay; W. J. Litchfield.

Supervisors—Kempville District, John C. Wood, Norfolk R. P. D. W. E. Spence, Princess Anne.

Seaboard District—George W. Land, Princess Anne; R. L. Smith, Lynnhaven; O. A. Land, Princess Anne; M. D. Gornito, London Bridge.

Pungo District—John B. Stone, incumbent, and Chairman of Board Back Bay; D. S. Dawley, Pleasant Ridge, and B. B. Williams.

Seventeen days yet remain in which primary candidates can present their claims for preference. Doubtless from now on some activity may be observed in a few instances, but as a general thing nothing approaching a strenuous fight for this or that office is anticipated. As we stated on a previous occasion Princess Anne voters are able to select their public servants, and doubtless will agree to it that the best men are chosen.

Outlook Bright for Hotel.

Realizing the need of an all-year hotel at Virginia Beach, we have been sanguine of its building. And while delays and difficulties have been encountered the fight to overcome them has been insistent and persistent by our Chamber of Commerce. This body deserves well of our citizens.

At a meeting held in Mason Hall Monday night much interest was manifested. It was obvious that the enterprise would not be abandoned if any escape from such a catastrophe could be found.

Twenty thousand dollars was all that was needed, but to obtain this was the point. After deliberation a resolution was adopted to send a strong committee to New York to confer with Marsden J. Perry, president of the Norfolk Southern road. C. M. Percebe, Hugh W. Davis and James S. Groves were appointed. These gentlemen will go over the situation in all its relations to the road and Virginia Beach and it is believed some plan may be evolved that will lead to the erection of the hotel. In view of the foregoing statement we believe the "outlook is bright for the hotel."

Nous verrons.

Princess Anne Medical Society. The Princess Anne County Medical Society met at Hotel Percebe, Virginia Beach, Tuesday, July 12th. The society discussed "Intestinal Diseases and Malaria."

The next meeting will be held at Princess Anne Court House the second Monday in October, when officers will be elected for the ensuing year. The present officers are: President—Dr. R. E. Whitehead, Kempville; Secretary—Dr. T. L. Brooks, Oceana.

The society was the guest of Dr. Brooks at luncheon after adjournment.

FROM ATLANTIC TO PACIFIC

Notable Trip of Two Virginia Beach Ladies from Ocean to Ocean—Valuable Information Gained, Etc., Etc.

An elaborate and well-planned outing from Virginia Beach to the Pacific was that undertaken by Mrs. Dr. Emerson Land and daughter, Miss Louise Land. The tour, while affording volumes of practical information and knowledge that could not otherwise be secured, had in it all the elements of rational pleasure and rest, with ample time to take notes and secure photographic views.

Mrs. and Miss Land made Washington, D. C., their starting point. They left there April 1st, taking the "Sunset" Route for California. Their first stop was at Atlanta, thence on to New Orleans for a week. They halted for a week each in Houston and El Paso, Texas. Spent three weeks in Los Angeles.

From here they took in the Exposition at San Diego and a visit to the Catalina Islands in the Pacific. Then, on to San Francisco, where a month was spent looking over the Exposition and sightseeing generally.

The ladies left for the East over the Northern Pacific road. They are now at Yellow Stone Park. From the latter they go to Ogden, taking in Salt Lake City, Denver and Colorado Springs, Chicago and back to Washington and their pleasant home at Virginia Beach on the rim of the Atlantic.

A Sermon on the Atlantic.

Early one morning this week dawned at the fish-house of Mr. David Stormont a Baptist minister and some ladies came along. "Mr. Stormont was on the point of going out with his launch to the nets. The strangers were in quest of something new and novel. The good man in charge of the ladies expressed a wish to accompany the fishermen. They were politely invited aboard and were soon pushing their way through the breakers out into the smoother waters of the Atlantic. A good long wait occurred at the nets. The fish people were awaiting the order to "haul." Taking advantage of the lull in commercial affairs the good man of the church had his thoughts directed to the spiritual. Time and opportunity blended. Turning to a certain passage in his Bible where it is told of the Disciples of our Lord and the fishermen, he began one of the most eloquent and impressive sermons ever heard on land or sea. The fishermen were moved by his logic. They enjoyed what had been told them. And thus it may be they will become better and truer men as a result of the sermon they heard out on the ocean.

Outing at Virginia Beach Hotel

Notwithstanding the Virginia Beach Hotel was not thrown open to the public this season, it cannot be said of it that "its lights have fled, its garlands dead," for Messrs. A. C. Smith (junior) and Roy Smith, of Oceana, and their sister, Mrs. McCain, of Norfolk, with their friends, have taken possession for an outing, and are bringing to this fine old hostelry a touch of the refinement, gayety, comforts and pleasure it enjoyed in other days. With enchanting music, cool zephyrs, and ocean baths the happy sojourners by the sea are making life enjoyable.

SOUTH VIRGINIA BEACH

Has Wild Natural Scenery—Beautiful Lake Christine—Rifle Range and Camping of Troops

To the Editor of the Times: Few visitors at the Beach realize that that part of the Beach called "South Virginia Beach" possesses rare beauties. Its wild natural scenery, with hills leading over to beautiful Lake Christine, (named for the daughter of Mr. James S. Groves the energetic president of the Virginia Beach Development Company), is well worth a visit. The Virginia State Rifle Range have their brown tents erected on its banks, boats ply its waters, and with the enchantment of a band of music greeting the casual stranger, and the glint and glitter of bayonets, one sees the troops, all handsome and brave young soldiers, fortifying the Virginia National Guard.

Sunday, July 12th will mark the arrival of the First Regiment going into camp, Col. W. J. Perry of Staunton, commanding. Four companies from Richmond and eight from the Shenandoah Valley will be there.

Star of the Sea Church.

The Catholic church, now in process of erection at Virginia Beach, will be completed by the 15th of August. On that Sunday Bishop O'Connell of Richmond will come to the Beach and dedicate the church.

Mr. Kelvin Peabody of Norfolk is the architect and Mr. R. E. Johnson of this place the builder. The church occupies an excellent location and is well adapted.

We have arranged to give a detailed description of the edifice and also a photograph of it in our next issue. It will be known by the name of "The Star of the Sea."

As the ceremony of dedication is one very interesting to Catholics and the public in general, a hearty invitation is extended to residents of the Beach and Norfolk to attend.

The Sisters of Charity from St. Vincent's Hospital at Norfolk, who have been conducting a Sunday School with much success at the Beach last winter will be present with the children.

Sunday Schools Still Coming.

The reputation of Virginia Beach as a desirable point for holding annual Sunday school picnics is evidenced by the number that have up to the present arrived, and the cry is "still they come." Last week we noted the incoming of several. Coming to the present: Tuesday, July 13th, the Calvary Baptist church of Portsmouth brought in its large school, and Wednesday, July 14th, the South Norfolk Baptist church arrived with an immense crowd. The end is not yet and the cry is "still they come."

Thursday the South Norfolk church of the Liberty street Methodist church brought their United Sunday schools. It took a steam engine and seven coaches and a baggage car to handle them.

The New Virginia Hotel.

If any of our Princess Anne readers with good appetites who go to Norfolk and get on the hunt for a square meal and a clean place to sleep they will find that Garrett's. Garrett runs the New Virginia Hotel on Main street, down toward the Union depot, and uses its outside rooms. So we say if you are hungry and sleepy, go to Garrett's.

Beach Masons Meet

The Masonic fraternity of the Beach had their July meeting Wednesday night. We had the pleasure of being present. The session was short to allow some of the brethren to attend a lecture. It was arranged to have a called meeting Tuesday evening, July 20, for work in the Third Degree. Refreshments will be served.

Meeting of Supervisors.

There was a called meeting of the Board of County Supervisors held at the court house, Wednesday, July 14, the object being to estimate the expenses for the ensuing year, and to lay the tax levy to meet the same.

PERSONAL AND OTHERWISE

W. T. McBain of Richmond, Mrs. and Miss Tripitt of Markham, Va., Mrs. C. C. Council of Richmond, Rev. R. B. Claiborne of Marietta, Ga., have returned to their homes. They attended the Encampment and stopped at the Ocean Wave Cottage.

What is said and heard in and about the postoffice lobby during mail-opening hours from femininity is a subject being studied by a humorous parapsychist. He claims that his observations will embrace chapters that are rich, rare and racy.

R. O. James, Secretary of the Commonwealth, will please accept our thanks for a copy of his Report for the year 1914. The publication is valuable, especially to newspaper publishers. Contains just such information as the Virginia editor has almost daily for.

Miss Bettie Macon of the County, youngest sister of Dr. Land and daughter, Miss Mary Macon, are at the Beach visiting. Miss Macon was a graduate of Oceana high school last year and a student at the State Normal School at Farmville during the session last closed. She will return to Farmville the coming season.

Our Baptist friends gave an enjoyable watermelon feast or party on the beach in front of the Percebe Hotel, Wednesday afternoon in the interest of the Virginia Beach Baptist church. It was a pleasant social affair and yielded the ladies in charge a nice sum.

The familiar face of Mr. E. Seneca, so well known about the court house, was in evidence Monday. Mr. Seneca is looking well and enjoying fairly good health. But as the result of a serious operation several years ago feels the necessity of taking the best care of himself.

The Times had a pleasant chat with Mr. Paul W. Ackiss at the courteous Monday. He was found as courteous and obliging as in other days and given up pleasure to acknowledge ourselves indebted for favors. And, by the way, Mr. Ackiss is out for stier to succeed himself.

"Old Glory" Council No. 223, Jr. O. U. A. M., of Kempville, Va., will give a banquet in that village on Wednesday evening, July 22, and have invited Colonial Council of Virginia Beach and the Nimmo council to be in attendance as guests. The Times acknowledges an invitation to be present.

The Times office has on file the application of a very responsible and neat appearing middle aged man for a position as caretaker or watchman. This applicant we know personally and will guarantee him to be a satisfaction to the lucky man or firm securing his services. He is strictly sober, industrious and reliable.

If you want to leave the electric division at Euclid and go down along the Munden line, do not take the morning express from the Beach. The express does not stop at Euclid. Several parties had experience as to this last Monday. They had to go on to Norfolk and then back to Euclid before they got to the Court House. See?

Roy Smith of Oceana is now one of a party rustling at the Beach, he having recently returned from assiduous studies at Washington and Lee University. Mr. Smith has completed his course in the law, creditably passed the order of the State Board of Examiners and is now eligible to hang out his shingle as attorney, or otherwise at his option.

Mrs. R. E. Johnson and Miss Sallie Miller of the Atlantic Cottage, have gotten back from a delightful trip to the Pacific coast. They left the Beach the first of May and taking the Southern route, found time to visit, Sand Ago, Los Angeles, San Francisco, Yellowstone Park, Salt Lake City and other places of note. These ladies will long remember their "Sunset visit."

The Norfolk Southern is affording we "Beachites" a most welcome innovation—that of running a cottage car between Lake Station and the Casino. Whether it pays the road in dollars and cents is not known to us. We do know, however, it is a great convenience and one we sorely appreciate. The distance between the two points is about two miles. Fare 5 cents.

Remember the little babies to keep them cool and happy.

Virginia Beach, Virginia, Friday, July 16, 1915

CROWDED TO REPLETION.

It appears to us that even the most casual observer has witnessed that quite too many parents influenced largely by a false pride, are encouraging their sons to become lawyers, doctors, ministers of the gospel, etc., under the delusive hope that these professions open the pathway to success in life if not to distinction.

There could be no graver error than this. The professions are now crowded to repletion. If evidence were wanted as to the truth of this, one need only to refer to the large number of young men attending theological seminaries of the various religious denominations in all sections—to the students in the law classes of universities, and to the undergraduates qualifying as medical practitioners. On the other hand few indeed are those who enter the schools of natural history and geology.

Of those who enter the learned professions a few perhaps who possess more than ordinary ability coupled with indomitable energy and industry, may achieve distinction, while the large majority earn but little more than a bare subsistence and leave their families in straitened circumstances.

Nothing in our opinion has tended more seriously to retard the advancement of Virginia in a course of prosperity along all lines than the disposition of our active, intelligent young men to migrate to other States. It is of the highest importance, therefore, that their minds should be disabused of the fallacy that Virginia does not present an ample field for the exercise of talent and industry. The elements of future wealth and prosperity are more diversified and scattered more profusely in Virginia than in any State of the Union. There is no good reason, therefore, why her young men should go abroad to seek their fortunes. Let them go where they may, they will find that it is the immutable decree of the Creator that labor is the price of success in every clime and every pursuit. If they will exercise the same industry, the same self-denial and the same economy here which they are compelled to practice when they go abroad, they will be quite as prosperous in Virginia as in any land under the sun.

Furthermore, the Times is certain that if they will study the history of those who have left their native State and succeeded elsewhere, they will find that the emigrant threw aside his old habits of indolence and self-indulgence and applied himself assiduously to his work in his new home.

THE PUBLIC SCHOOL.

The public school is one of our greatest constructive agencies, and without its aid and assistance in creating and cultivating the intellect our young people would soon be sinking to the ancient plane of ignorance and superstition.

There is nothing to be gained by jeopardizing this project, but there is everything to gain by fostering and encouraging and extending it a helping hand.

Education is a vital necessity of the day, and its effects are felt in every walk of life. Without it a young man enters upon the serious problems of life handicapped in a thousand ways.

THE CONFLICT COLOSSAL.

In magnitude of operations and figures of slaughter the great European war has already far surpassed all others in history. A struggle like that of Waterloo or Gettysburg has been an almost weekly occurrence at some point of the two thousand mile line. In the two actions at Neuve Chapelle, the British offensive and the subsequent German reprisal, covering ten days of stupendous military activity, there was, on the calculation of a writer in the Army and Navy Journal, more ammunition expended than in the entire four years of our Civil War. Yet it seems that this dreadful war is still to reach the climax of its intensity, so that from now on we may look for a murderous melee among mighty masses of maddened men that will convert the scenes into an inferno of misery and desolation to satisfy and gratify the arch-fiend himself.

City Picture Shows.

The Norwegian Diet recently passed a law providing that the licenses of all motion picture theaters in Norway shall expire in 1916, the cities may then renew the licenses or establish municipal motion picture shows. Many of the cities propose to show educational films in municipalized theatres, thinking the surplus earnings of the theaters will increase the city revenues. The proprietors of the motion picture house will lose their business without compensation, although some of the cities are extending the time for canceling the licenses until 1918.

New Cave in Nevada.

Geologists and miners are now exploring a wonderful cave just found near Tonopah, Nev. A miners blasted to the discovery of a vast subterranean cavern of undetermined extent, and a survey is now being made. During a hurried examination lights showed sparkling stalactites hanging from the sides of the chasm as far as sight could reach and tones dropped through the opening could be heard bounding from wall to wall until the sounds grew faint and died away.

Want Manganese and Mica.

Owing to war conditions prevailing in Europe an enormous demand has been created for manganese and mica. These minerals are largely mined in Piedmont Virginia, and their export brings considerable money to the State.

Casualty List 5,000,000.

The terrible losses of the war in Europe is made clear by a press dispatch just sent out from Berlin, which says that more than 5,000,000 soldiers of the countries at war with Germany have been killed, wounded or captured. These figures have been compiled from papers and magazines published in foreign countries.

Russia is shown to have been the heaviest loser, with more than 3,000,000 men. It is estimated. The figures are obtained in the following fashion: There are more than a million Russians dead and wounded at present, listed at 1,300,000, according to the German general staff. The London Times as long ago as January placed these figures have been compiled from papers and magazines published in foreign countries.

In Germany at present there are over 300,000 French prisoners of war, in addition to which the French losses are known to have been huge. The Italian paper, Corriere della Sera, estimates that the French army has lost half its strength in dead and seriously wounded, and the London Daily Mail places the French loss in dead, wounded and captured at 1,500,000 as a minimum.

The balance of the estimated five million is made up, after the British and Belgian losses of all kinds, and the total is rather too low than too high. From its statistics it draws the conclusion that "the accession of Italy to the ranks of our enemies will not snatch victory from us."

HUMAN SNOBBERY

Fountain Inn, S. C. Tribune

We don't know what the explanation is unless it be that snobbery is a quality as natural to humans as keen sense of smell is to hounds, but it is an accepted fact that most people have a sort of craving to be somebody in society." "Being somebody" in society does not by any means necessitate the possession of any unusual degree of intelligence; neither is it necessary that one be possessed of money, or official position, or even "ancestors."

We know that it is generally assumed that the thing we call society is composed of persons who possess wit, high position, distinguished ancestors and unlimited wealth.

But that assumption is almost entirely wrong. As a matter of fact, many persons who have great wealth have tried for years to become an accepted part of "society," but without success. And nearly all men and women of exceptional wit and intelligence shun "society"—not because they are too serious for relaxation, but because they see the hollow mockery of it—the frantic chase for amusement, the constant play acting, the essentially childish mania for showing-off before one another. Moreover, the accepted ideals of society are sometimes lacking in money as well as wit, and are hard put to it to find even one ancestor on whom to hang their claim to "blood."

There is no definition for the word society. It is merely a state of mind—a mental disease that attacks those whose skulls are not entirely full of brains.

London smiles at the thought of "society" in New York; New York sneers at Chicago; Chicago lords it over Pittsburg; Pittsburg "society" would not open its doors to the self-acknowledged swells of—say Greenville; and Greenville society probably has no place for Fountain Inn's "Four hundred."

Not that the people of any one section are essentially better or worse than those in any other section. Not that. But they all find pleasure in thinking that they are better, and that explains "society."

Why, we have no doubt there are people here in town who please themselves with the notion that they are socially above people in the country!

Most of us here in town are honest; most of us pay our debts, and there are a few who actually have bath tubs in their homes! But if there is anybody in town with a keener wit or a truer honor than some of the chaps who come to town wearing overalls, we haven't met him—or her.

The truth of the matter is, most of us—of both sexes—are asses. We spend our youth on a farm; handling stable manure and swinging a hoe in a decent and honorable vocation, and then, when we have made a little money, we move to town to "be somebody."

Can you tell me wherein the business of wearing a white collar and whittling a dry goods box on Main street makes us more of a "somebody" than we were on the farm? Can you point out to us the reason why Mrs. Z. here in town with manicured nails and a new and unpaid-for gown on her unfashionable figure, is better or more worthy than was the same Mrs. Z. in calico, chopping cotton? If you can you will solve a problem in sociology.

We need more social intercourse here in town. We need to neglect our selfish business of evenings and go "a-ta-while" with the neighbors across town. We need to get together on grown-up parties.

But man, dear, we don't need women who dress beyond their means and affect a broad "a" when they get their glad duds on. We don't need snobbish little girls whose dads have less money. We don't need men who feel that they are really too big for a town of this size, or men who have a secret longing to don a dress suit at some evening affair just to show the natives what a real superior being looks like.

In fact, all we need is just a little common sense—enough, at least to realize that we are all pretty much alike, all faulty, all in need of travel and education, all in need of cleaner hearts and more kindness and less conceit. May the Lord help us not to make asses of ourselves.

Low Price of Potatoes.

Local truckers have been hit hard by the low price of potatoes. Latest advices quote the New York market at $1.00 to $1.25 a barrel; in Norfolk they were selling at 80 cents a barrel.

The present low prices are accounted for by the large crops raised here and on the Eastern Shore—where the potatoes are being dug in great quantities—and to the fact that the Maryland, Jersey and Long Island potatoes are already beginning to go forward to market.

It is estimated that it costs 70 to 75 cts. a barrel to get potatoes out of the ground in this section and land them in New York. Thus the selling price makes it hardly worth while to ship them, yet they must be gotten rid of; the farmer may take advantage of the fertilizer under them for a corn or fall potato crop.

Potato-raisers say this is the worst ever, and the worst on most everything except spinach and kale.

42,318 Bushels of Grain.

For the handling of grain at its elevators in Newport News the Chesapeake and Ohio Railway has just closed a banner year. More grain was handled during the fiscal year ending June 30 than ever before by the C. & O. at Newport News.

The figures made public at the general offices of the C. & O. Railway Company in Richmond show the total number of bushels handled to have been 42,318,208. This exceeds the best previous year's work by sixteen million bushels.

A Grave Digger's Record.

William de Brular, who has been a gravedigger since 1881, has dug more than 3,500 graves. He has removed more than 262,500 cubic feet of earth and rock from graves alone. Of the 3,500 graves 171 were for persons who met death by accident, five were victims of murders, one was a murderer who took his own life and sixty-three were for persons who had committed suicide.

Mr. de Brular was formerly a minister.

Phosphate rock in paying quantities has been discovered in Johnson county, Tenn., and extending across the State line into Grayson and Washington counties, Va. This is an unusual discovery in that locality and is attracting wide attention.

Canada's army in England, France and Flanders has grown to 80,000 men, a greater force than Wellington had at Waterloo, and nearly twice as large as the entire British forces engaged in the Crimean war.

The Rose Cliff Cider mills at Waynesboro, Va., were burned last week, the largest in the State, and causing a loss of $70,000. Insured for $40,000.

Revenue officers captured a small "moonshine" distillery in Greenville county last week. They got 10 gallons of whiskey and cut up the still.

A CARD.

To My Fellow Citizens of Princess Anne County, Virginia:

I hereby announce myself a candidate for Treasurer of Princess Anne County, Va., subject to the Democratic Primary on August 1st.

In making this announcement I take occasion to refer to the part I took in the work of rescuing Princess Anne from the humiliation and disgrace of Negro rule, which then threatened our County.

It was then I served my people, and it is for them to say how well I did the work. Was Chairman of the Democratic County Committee for 12 years, for 12 years I served as Election Judge and for 12 years as Poll Book Commissioner. And it was during these years I had many disagreeable duties to discharge, as many will remember. On one occasion on court day at Princess Anne Courthouse two Negroes—Hodges and Land—were making violent speeches against the white people of the County. John Nott came to me and said if he had twenty men he would take these Negroes from the stand. I told him to follow me and I would take them from the stand myself. I knocked Hodges from the stand and Land jumped over the fence, both leaving their hats in their flight.

When Tony Wilson was a Negro magistrate in Kempsville district, I was asked what should be done. I told my friends Tony had either to go out of office voluntarily or else he would disappear. The first case he had to try was at Princess Anne Court House. When he called the court to order I walked into the court room with a rap of my shoulder. After a while I said to Tony: "What the devil do you know about law?" He said: "Sah?" I then said to him: "Do you see this rope?" He said: "Yes, sah, I've been watching that rope some time and I want to get rid of this office." I told him if he did, to follow me. We then went to Judge Kellam's office, and Tony said: "Master Judge, this here office I've got I want to get rid of it." Judge Kellam told him if he did, to sign "these papers." Tony then said to me: "Mr. Cason, you ain't goin' to hang me now, are you?" I said to him that I had not said I was going to hang him, but had simply asked if he had not seen the rope over my shoulder.

On another occasion, it being court day, and the next day, Tuesday, being election day, James A. McAlpin and myself were in the Court-house yard when James H. Caffee and his brother B. T. Caffee, who were running a hotel at Princess Anne, came up and said to me: "Walter, my dining room is full of Negroes and demand dinner, and my family is terribly frightened, won't you get a crowd and drive them out?" I pulled a pistol from James A. McAlpin's pocket, walked into the dining room alone and said: "I understand you Negroes want dinner. I have dinner enough in this gun for you all! The door was not large enough for them to get out. They were piled up four or five deep all the door!"

On the following night I was at Kempsville and James H. Bonney sent me word not to come to the Court House the next morning to serve as Judge of Election, as 200 Negroes would be there who said they intended to take my life. I borrowed a shot gun and at dawn next day rode to the Court House. There I found James H. Bonney and a yard full of Negroes. I drove to the back door of the hotel and out of the buggy, making the remark: "I understand you black devils are going to take my life, and before taking I am going to kill some of you." I then proceeded to put some shells in my gun. James H. Bonney came out in his night clothes and tried to pull me in the house. I said to him: "No, let me shoot them. His wife then came out, and yielding to her wishes, I went into the house. But as soon as I was inside Mr. Bonney locked the door, saying that I was the biggest fool he ever saw, as the Negroes had been there all night planning to kill me. When the sun rose I observed that this Negro mob were running and falling over fences in every direction. I was one of the Judges at the polls. About 10 o'clock John Caphart, a Negro, and one of the leaders of his race in Princess Anne, drove up with five wagon loads of Negroes to vote. When the voting of whites was slack, I voted two wagon loads of Negroes. By that time there was a rush of whites to the polls. Then I said to Caphart that as he had voted 18 Negroes, and as there was now a rush of white voters I was going to vote them one by one. He said no, that he had to vote his men and then go back and get more voters; and thereupon a rush was made for the window, Caphart being in front. I then told Caphart that if he did not move back and allow the white voters a chance I would have the window and come out and knock him down. The Negro laughed and said: "Mr. Cason, I have never been knocked down in my life." I raised to get out of the window when E. E. Burroughs, one of the Judges of Election, said: "Walter, don't you go out there—those Negroes will kill you." I got out of the window and said to Caphart: "We are friends are we not?" "Yes, sir." You asked me to knock you down and I did it to accommodate my friends! Down went Caphart, falling at the window where the voting was being done. E. E. Burroughs looked out of the window and said: "Walter, has he voted?" I said no. Burroughs then remarked that he would never vote again, that he was dead. I crawled back to my place inside and told our boys to come on and vote, as it was not necessary to stop because there was a dead Negro. No one would come up to the window to vote on account of the Negro lying there, so I went out and pulled him around the corner of the Court House, where Dr. Wright took charge of him.

Six hours later some one came to me and said that Caphart wanted to see me. I'm going to where he was. I found him sitting up and leaning against the Court House. He said: "Mr. Cason, are you mad with me?" When I told him I was not, he said he would never again ask me to knock him down—that he had seen more stars when I hit him than he has ever witnessed in the firmament.

At the next election this same Negro Caphart was appointed a Judge of election. A few minutes before sun-down the following day I got out of the window to go to Bonney's for a lamp so as to see how to count the ballots, making the remark as I did for the boys not to leave too soon after the polls had been closed, as some fun was to be had. I heard such a rum and so much laughing in the voting room that I went back and asked what the trouble was. They said Caphart had gone out of the back window, saying he knew what that meant, and that they were going to kill him there that night.

As to the correctness of the foregoing statements, I respectfully refer to the following gentlemen, well known citizens: J. H. Bonney, A. T. Herbert, J. I. Herriek, Randolph Ward, O. B. Mears, Solomon Bonney, Judge J. M. Keeling, E. E. Burroughs, R. L. Atwood, Martin Whitehead, John Earlie Whitehead, Major J. T. Woodhouse, J. C. Land, J. M. Malbon, J. T. Malbon, R. W. Ewell, J. F. Woodhouse.

And now, fellow-citizens, I submit that had it not been for prompt and vigorous action at a critical period in the political history of our County it would have been over-run by a horde of ignorant and vicious Negro officials, and that the part I played to avert such calamity was in obedience to a sacred duty—a duty I owed my wife and children—aye, the family of every white citizen of Princess Anne County.

And now, at the age of 44 years, I would as quickly resent in the most emphatic and vigorous manner any similar outrage upon the white manhood and womanhood of my County as I did in younger life.

In conclusion, I beg to assure the good people of Princess Anne County that if they elect me to serve them as Treasurer, that I will give the office my undivided and personal attention and endeavor to discharge its duties with credit to myself and to the best interests of the County.

I trust all my friends will be at the polls early on the 3d day of August and stay all day. Let us all pull together and put an end to ring rule.

Very respectfully,

W. W. CASON.

OUR KEMPSTOWN LETTER

Old Glory Council No. 233—Election and Installation of Officers— Banquet July 21st.

Kempstown, Va., July 14, '15. W. H. Frenger, Editor Princess Anne Times:

My dear Sir: At a meeting of the Jr. O. A. M., Old Glory Council No. 233 of Kempstown last evening the attention of the Council was called to your fine paper "The Princess Anne Times," by the Rev. R. J. Alfriend, Chaplain of the Council. On motion the paper was cordially endorsed, and the members urged to subscribe to it as an act of appreciation of your patriotic efforts to further the progress of our historic county of Princess Anne.

The following new officers were installed for the new term beginning July 1st, viz:

Edgar I. Herrick Counselor
J. C. Wood Vice Counselor
J. B. Bassett Asst. Rec. Sec.
Walter Halstead Outside Sec.
Rev. R. J. Alfriend Chaplain
J. G. Petree Fin. Secretary
J. L. Hargrove Trustee
Thos. H. Peters Conductor
W. H. Talley Warden
John B. Hogard Treasurer
B. R. Gallop Inside Sentinel

The installation office was conducted by our able Past Jr. Counselor Mr. George F. Ohlinger, and was very interesting to the large number of members present.

The Kempstown Juniors have invited Colonial Council of Virginia Beach, and the Nimmo Council Jr. O. A. M. to a banquet in the village of Kempstown, Wednesday evening July 21st, at eight o'clock. Dr. Robert E. Whitehead, Mrs. E. I. Herrick and John C. Wood are the committee in charge of the arrangements.

If you can make it convenient we will be glad to have you with us and tell us something in reference to the Princess Anne Times.

Yours respectfully,
Richard J. Alfriend,
Press Agent Old Glory Council No. 233.

Suffolk Y. M. C. A. Boys in Camp

George L. Woodhouse, son of the late Judge John T. Woodhouse of Princess Anne county, now located in Suffolk with the Y.M.C.A. Association, is directing the Boy Scouts and Y. M. C. A. camp at the Beach, and will remain two weeks. There are some 25 "Scouts" in camp, and every convenience is extended them looking to their comfort. They were given free passes to the Baptist Chautauqua and extended courtesies in other directions. Dr. Robert Woodhouse giving his services as camp physician.

Some half dozen tents supplied with cots, a mess tent, etc., are well located on 16th street on the lot of C. M. Hibbard and the scouts are enjoying camping by the sea to the limit. Their behavior is excellent and reflects credit not only upon themselves but upon their directing officer.

At the close of their vacation other boys will follow.

Thaw Sane.

Harry Kendall Thaw is sane. He has so been declared by a jury of his countrymen. It took the jury 48 minutes to decide Thaw had been fighting nine years for freedom. Now the agony is over. The next step should be reconciliation between Harry and Evelyn. Let them turn a leaf in the "Book of Life," and taking their little son by the hand, go on their way down the stream of life better and wiser people. That's all there is in life.

Saint Swithin's Day.

Thursday, July 16th, was Saint Swithin's day. In many countries the memory of this Saint is observed in his honor. He was a Saxon monk and bishop of the 9th century whose great virtue was that of humility. He considered himself as being the vilest of the human race, and he is said to have requested on his death-bed that his body should not be buried in the common cemetery with his brethren, but that as a mark of degradation, he should be laid to sleep where the rain from the roof of the monastery could fall on his grave and give it the appearance of neglect. His brethren buried him as he desired, but soon after, recognizing that this humility was but evidence of extraordinary sanctity, they resolved to disinter his remains and bury them with great pomp in a conspicuous part of the cemetery. July 15th was the day appointed for the ceremony, but, with the dawn of that day, there fell a perfect deluge of rain. During the whole day it poured and poured, and the second funeral of the humble saint was postponed till the next day. On the 16th it was the same thing—the flood-gates of Heaven were yet open, and again was the ceremony deferred. To make a long story short, as the saying is, the monks waited forty days for the opportunity to honor their dead brother, but the weather continued to be too bad for any outdoor business. At last, they became convinced that, good as their intentions were, it was not the will of Heaven that they should accomplish them, and they, therefore, abandoned the project. What concerns us most is that it is said that, if it rains on Saint Swithin's day, there will be more or less rain, every day, for the next forty. Although the legend originated with the Saxons in England, it has traveled across the seas to other lands, and from several countries of Europe and, perhaps, from parts of America; many an anxious eye is cast, every few minutes, on the summer sky, on Saint Swithin's Day, to watch for unwelcome indications.

Seaside Chautauqua.

Monday, the Sea-side Chautauqua and School of Methods of the Christian Church will inaugurate its work here at Virginia Beach for a period of rest, recreation, devotion and study. A great gathering of Christian workers and speakers will be in attendance, and topics of vital interest to humanity discussed. There will be good music with morning, afternoon and evening exercises throughout the week ending July 25th.

Princess Anne Circuit Court.

The regular July term of the Circuit Court of Princess Anne County will begin its work next Monday, July 19th, with Judge B. D. White, twenty-eighth circuit, presiding.

The attendance the first day, Monday, will not likely be large as the Court will devote the time in going over the docket and arranging dates for trial of the cases to be heard.

VOLUME I. NUMBER 11.

VIRGINIA BEACH, VIRGINIA, FRIDAY, JULY 23, 1915

ONE DOLLAR PER YEAR

AFFAIRS AT THE BEACH

The first has gone. The beach greets the second.

W. T. Jarvis was out again Tuesday from a week's attack of tonsillitis.

Miss Alice Stulenwerk of Baltimore is at the Burbank cottage for the season.

The cots secured for use in the Princess Anne Inn have followed the big tent, gone back to Norfolk.

The Princess Anne Times has been admitted to the mails as second class matter.

On account of insufficient typographical assistance we are a few hours late this week.

Rev. G. W. Griffin having relinquished the Rumpolt cottage, it will now be occupied until October by Prof. Paul Spence and family of Norfolk.

W. T. Harrison, proprietor of the Hillside Dairy, is furnishing pure cream, milk and mineral water to customers in any part of the city.

Mr. and Mrs. K. C. James of South Boston were at the Encampment. They also paid a visit to their brother, A. B. James.

The heavy rain Tuesday afternoon and night demonstrated that the drainage at the rifle range worked well, carrying off the water as it fell.

Hon. John Lamb, formerly Congressman from the Richmond district, has suggested rooms at the Rohn E. Lee cottage.

Lawsen Chalmers, colored, had a bunk in the town keep Thursday night and paid $4.00 for the luxury.

Mrs. A. Currier and Miss Anna Currier and Miss Aileen Irwin of Petersburg are the guests of Miss Kate Woolfolk at the Robert E. Lee cottage.

Contending candidates have only ten days remaining before the Primary.

The longest pole gets the "Simmons."

Lieutenant E. W. Ogle, company I of Staunton, won the medal offered by the National Rifle Association, making a score of 137 out of a possible 150 points.

The Socialists of Lynnhaven have nominated W. L. White for the House of Delegates.

Mr. O'Brien is foreman of the Advance newspaper of that city.

W. H. Gunn, Esq. of Norfolk is being warmly recommended for State Senator.

Mr. Gunn is well known as a man of ability and made good record in the legislature from Norfolk.

The rains of Tuesday afternoon, was fine on crops and gardens but laid on our soldier boys down at the rifle range. Then again at night another heavy shower continued several hours.

Congressman E. E. Holland spent several days at the beach this week mending his political fence, which, it is said, has been considerably weakened in some sections of Princess Anne.

The copious rains the first of the week cooled the earth and the waters but not the propensity for gambling.

"Yes, I can't go bathing—too cold!" Poor human nature. Never satisfied.

There has not been a single case of sickness at the Virginia Beach Rifle Range this year, and the soldier boys agree it's an ideal place for their annual shoots.

The Masonic brethren of the Beach had work in the Third degree Tuesday, a Fellowship having been raised to the sublime degree of a Master Mason. Refreshments followed.

The Boy Scouts from Suffolk have come home. They were under command of Capt. Geo. L. Woodhouse of the Suffolk Y. M. C. A. A better outfit of boys never came to the Beach.

Mr. Cooley is stringing the wires in the new Catholic church. This is as it should be. He is an expert in electrical affairs. In a battery of lamps and devices and should receive our electrical work. Give it to him.

It is announced by card that Miss Ellen Winston of Philadelphia will teach all the modern dances at the Virginia Beach Hotel. Class lessons at 10 a. m. and private dancing by appointment. Now's your chance, you lads and ladies, O?

Guests at the R. E. Lee cottage—Miss Susie Woolfolk and Mr. W. W. Woolfolk, Richmond; Mr. Fred Davis and wife and their two children, formerly of Elizabeth City; Mr. Robert H. Bush of Norfolk with Mrs. Bush and Misses Francis and Sarah Bush.

DOWN AT THE RIFLE RANGE

First Regiment Arrives 600 Strong, Col. William J. Perry—Spent Week in Qualifying for Marksmen and Sharpshooters—First Regiment Leaves Sunday—Second Arrives Sunday Evening.

The First regiment attached to the Virginia Brigade of Infantry, Col. Wm. J. Perry commanding, arrived at the rifle range Sunday afternoon, July 18. The First was made up of companies from the Valley of Virginia, Alexandria, Lynchburg, and Richmond and numbered 600. Everything was in readiness and the work of getting down to camp life moved along without a hitch.

The camp site was in fine condition. The drainage system had carried off the water that fell in the early part of June to the extent of nearly five inches.

The target ranges had been supplied with new frames for 200, 300, 500 and 600 yard butts, these being the only ranges used, as the 1,000 yard range will not be used, except for national matches.

Most of the time, the troops are qualifying as marksmen, sharpshooters, but other features of the camp are not neglected.

Guard-mount is held every afternoon and dress parade once or twice by each regiment.

Though the State militia has not been at the camp as a body since 1913 the range has been frequently used since then. Detachments from the Coast Guard Service, Marine Corps and local infantry companies and the Norfolk-Portsmouth Rifle Club have used the range for trips of one and two days.

Monday July 19 the third battalion of the regiment practised target firing. This battalion is made up from the troops from Alexandria, Staunton, and is better known as the "Irish Battalion, or Mike." Sergeant Whitlock of Staunton made the best record of the day with 111 range out of a 120 possible points.

Quartermaster W. W. Sert and Sergeant Boyer Toted tried for second place with 108 hits out of a possible 120.

Tuesday, July 20, found the several companies of the regiment striving for expert rifle men, and, notwithstanding the heavy rain, the Third and Second battalions finished the slow firing at 200, 300 and 500 yard ranges. Sergeant Brinkley of the Covington company made 45 out of a possible 50 points.

Sergeant Brouch of the Lynchburg company made 48 out of a possible 50.

Wednesday, July 21—Again Sergeant Brouch demonstrated his skill as a marksman, when, firing at 300 yards, he scored 50 points out of a possible 50. Sergeant Brouch is Captain of the Virginia State Indoor Rifle team.

Sergeant G. M. Bell, also of Lynchburg, scored 47 points out of a possible 50 at the 300 yard rapid fire range. Private R. E. Wehn of Staunton scored 48 out of 50 points.

Sergeant P. D. Bagby, also of Staunton, scored 48 out of 50, shooting at the 300 yard range. Lieutenant G. F. Fretwell of Company K, Staunton made 47 out of 50 points.

Company I from Staunton is the best record of the twelve companies at the range. With 52 men in the company, 40 have qualified for the finals, while the

And Yet They Come.

Sunday Schools to the Beach! Short, safe and comfortably ride, fine scenery, cool breezes, ocean bathing, scenic railway, affable conductors, elegant promenades, shady nooks, hobby horses, orderly people—no wonder they come!

Tuesday, July 20, Wright Memorial school brought in an immense crowd and spent a delightful outing.

Wednesday, July 21, we had the Port Norfolk school with us, and all, big and little, departed with pleasant memories of a well-spent day.

Thursday, July 22, the largest excursion of the season came from Edenton, N. C., the Norfolk Southern using eleven coaches to haul the crowd.

While a large proportion of the visitors represented the Edenton Baptist school, there were many from other denominations.

next company in order only has twenty.

Thursday, July 22—Today the three battalions continued their target practice, moving up from one range to another.

The First regiment has finished its preliminary course at the rifle range, shooting tall ranges and in both slow and rapid fire. Only one officer in the first battalion has qualified in the finals, but several have not yet fired.

The National Rifle Association will give the man making the best score a gold medal.

Camp will break early Sunday morning and the different companies will depart promptly for their respective homes, so as to make room for the Second Regiment, which is scheduled to arrive Sunday about noon.

TOLL ROADS TO BE SOLD

The Toll Roads in Princess Anne and North Counties to be Sold Under U. S. Court Decree—Date of Sale September 15th

A decree in accordance with the instructions of Judge Wadsworth several days ago, ordering the sale of certain toll roads in Norfolk and Princess Anne counties, was entered in the United States District Court in the suit of William D. Anderson vs. Norfolk and Suburban Turnpike Company.

Walter H. Taylor, trustee under a deed of trust; J. E. Cole, J. L. Hubbard and N. T. Green were appointed special commissioners to make the sale, which will be held at noon, September 15th, in front of the Courthouse of the Circuit Court of Norfolk county in Portsmouth.

The following roads will be sold: Princess Anne Turnpike, Broad Creek Turnpike, Indian River Road, Campostella Road and Tanner's Creek Road.

Marriage of Baptist Minister.

Congratulations are in order upon the marriage of the minister of the First Baptist church of Virginia Beach, the Rev. Nathaniel Richards and Mrs. Clara Shinnault of North Carolina.

The nuptials were celebrated Monday evening, July 19, in the Monticello hotel in Norfolk. Rev. Calvin S. Blackwell officiating. At the conclusion of the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Richards left on a Northern tour.

Mr. Richards has been pastor of the Virginia Beach Baptist church for five years, during which time the congregation has grown and the prosperity of the church increased greatly. During his pastorate a new concrete and stone church has been built, Mr. Richards came to Virginia Beach from a New York church.

Mrs. Richards is a daughter of Captain John Ballance of Currituck county, North Carolina.

Careless Wiring.

Our local electrician, Mr. T. F. Cooley, reports in several recent jobs he has been called to look over much neglect on the part of those who wired the cottages, the jobs in question having been done by outside contractors.

This should emphasize the value of giving home industry the preference—you will get better results and at the same time save a few dollars. Mr. Cooley's address will be found in his advertisement in another column.

Weekly Weather Forecast

Our old weather-wise friend, Capt. John F. Newsum, who presides over the U. S. Weather Bureau Station at Cape Henry, has kindly furnished us with a "weekly weather forecast" for the week beginning Wednesday, July 21, 1915, from data made up by the weather at Washington.

"For Middle Atlantic States: The week will be one of generally fair weather, with moderate temperature. Warmer weather, however, is probably toward the end of the week."

The readers of the Times generally will be satisfied with the foregoing forecast, and will keep a sharp look out to see how near it is correct.

New Virginia Hotel

This orderly and well-conducted hostelry is an ideal place for Princess Anne and Virginia Beach folk to put up at when they go to Norfolk. Centrally located at 820 to 824 Main street, clean beds, baths, beautifully supplied tables, comfortable lobby, and all at reasonable charges. Stop there, Mr. Garrett will give you the glad hand!

SCORES FOOT BALL

Dr. Whitaker Declares It Is Worse Than Mexican Bull Fight Arena—College Hazing Denounced—The Cigarette Habit, Etc.

In his address Tuesday evening at the Seaside Chautauque and School of Methods of the Christian church the Rev. O. K. Whitaker, D. D., of Glenese, Florida, took occasion to score the great American game of football. He said that the college grid-irons was worse than the Mexican bull fight arena. He declared that football was brutal, that it should not be approved by the colleges and that the students who took part in it were gamblers.

His subject was "Succes and its Foundation."

In connection with the same subject, Dr. Whitaker declared educational institutions which could not prohibit hazing should be deprived of their charters. Those assertions came in connection with what higher education did for success. He said higher education produces careless indifference characterized by the cigarette-smoker, and he said he did not believe in the careless, self-indulgent air which students "dress" evening suits." Every institution, he said, which cannot prohibit hazing ought to have its charter taken from it. He also described the "grillings" of the country as worse than the Mexican bull fight and a brutality that ought not to be approved. This, he means, he said, is education. It is affection and affection is ruining personality.

The Virginia Editors

The Virginia Press Association, which held its annual convention at Newport News elected the following officers for the ensuing year:

President—Robert S. Barrett, Alexandria.

Vice Presidents—Walter F. Addison, Lynchburg; W. S. Copeland, Newport News; W. A. Land, Blackburg; Allen Potts, Richmond.

Secretary—J. L. Hart, Farmville.

Treasurer—O. W. Eans, Newlands.

Historian—Miss Bertha Gray Robinson, Orange.

Important recommendations were made by the committee on resolutions—the president of the Association not to be eligible for re-election for two consecutive terms, was the most important.

Ohio leads the states in the value of its clay products and in the manufacture of grindstones and pulpetones, and ranks fourth in the value of its total mineral production.

The Swiss papers report that a beautiful bird, strange to Switzerland, which has appeared in limited numbers in the Engadine, has caused apprehension among superstitious Swiss folk.

Potatoes are now being shipped from Norfolk in bulk to some of the large consuming centers, about 500 bushels to the car. The potatoes are hauled from the fields in barrels to sidings placed conveniently and then placed carefully in the cars.

Leo Frank, who escaped the gallows by commutation of sentence for life in the penitentiary, at Milledgeville, Ga., while asleep in his bunk in prison, was assaulted by a fellow convict and so seriously injured that he may die.

Rev. T. J. Taylor, of the Ocean View Methodist church, while on a Norfolk street car Monday, was rendered unconscious from heat and general weakness. He was 70 years old and much loved. He was on his way to district conference.

PERSONAL AND OTHERWISE

All that any man has to do in order to attract attention is to make a fool of himself.

There is a good thing the only thing, and the world is entitled to enjoy it.

"Shirless, shrewish, and stocking line" is the description of the latest seaside bather.

If you are unwilling to do some thing that will help your town for goodness sake don't criticize the fellow who does.

Mr. Foster has those boarders at the jail, two sweating trial and now awaiting arrival of guard to carry him to the penitentiary. Convicted of stealing a horse from the county aim house who does.

Mrs. L. E. Somerville of Richmond, is here on a visit to her sister, Mrs. A. J. Fringer, and will remain several weeks enjoying the ocean dip. This being her first trip to Virginia Beach she is more than delighted at the beautiful ocean waves.

The maxim guns are the latest thing, as the "diffe" is doomed. Why has not the Virginia militia this modern weapon to fire with on "Tranquility Lodge"? The old-fashioned "brown bees" only hit the house twice on Tuesday, making a record of ten shots now in the house and stable.

C. L. Thompson and family of Huntington, W. Va., are stopping at the Seaside, and will remain for several weeks. Mr. Thompson is an old and successful newspaper man. He started and ran the Huntington Advertiser for a number of years. He has now retired from active work and is enjoying life.

If you desire an evening of genuine pleasure, don't fail to attend the concert of the Patterson Jubilee Singers at the Virginia Beach Auditorium, Saturday, July 24th at 8 o'clock, p. m. It is the largest assembly of the Seggae Chautauque of the Christian church. Admission 25 cents.

Capt. W. H. Sterling of Cape Charles, a well-known fish dealer, is dead.

Eastville District, Northampton county, Va., has issued $25,000 in bonds to build good roads.

When you go to Norfolk stop at the New Virginia Hotel for good meals, soft beds and polite attention.

The new store of Simmons & Foster at the Court House is about ready for occupancy, quite an improvement on their present quarters.

LET'S HAVE THE BOULEVARD

Repeatedly at intervals during the past decade the discussion of a proposed boulevard between Virginia Beach and Norfolk has engaged the attention of newspaper readers, but to sum it up poetically—the seasons come and the seasons go and there's nothing doing here below.

We pointed out in a recent issue of the Times that the present road between Virginia Beach and Norfolk is for automobiles practically prohibitive, in wet weather on account of the mud, in dry weather on account of the dust. Considering the enormous number of automobiles in Norfolk, Virginia Beach and vicinity, a well constructed and well kept boulevard would prove of inestimable value both to a business and a social standard and would add immensely to the attractiveness of Virginia Beach and Norfolk.

As to the route of this road, a suggestion was once made—that it run from the east end of Brambleton avenue, through Chesterfield Heights and Riverview at the intersection of the Broad Creek, south through Greenwich station and to Virginia Beach through Kempville.

Further south they appear to get excellent results in road building by the use of ground oyster shells, a most abundant product in this section. In the coast sections in some parts of France oyster shells in combination with cinders and a proportion of cement yield almost perfect results. These French roads are sprinkled at intervals with crude petroleum, one application of which lays the dust for several weeks even in the driest weather and effectively prevents the growth of weeds along the edges.

The twentieth century is passing rapidly, but it is to be hoped that before its close Virginia Beach and Norfolk will be linked by a highway smooth and broad and beautiful.

THE NAVAL ADVISORY BOARD

If mere rhetoric and perverted promises could wage winning wars and seal the fate of nations the United States would undoubtedly be in a position to dictate Peace or deal pieces to the rest of the world. Almost daily we read of some wonderful new device or invention or discovery that will give this country first place in power and prestige. The latest proposition is Daniel's Advisory Board, which is inaugurated on the plain assumption that the official experts of the Navy are lacking in the essentials of their craft. What Mr. Daniels now suggests with so much flourish of trumpets and self-claim is a policy which has always in the past been followed by Germany. Mr. Edison, undoubtedly a very great inventor, has, however, for many years past been rather long on promises and short on performances. Perhaps he may be able to tell Mr. Daniels how to recover the sunken submarine in Honolulu harbor, concerning which our navy department has suddenly become very silent. If he can't, we know of a man in Norfolk who can.

The British government since March 11 has paid $3,500,000 for American cotton confiscated—Sixty vessels had been seized.

WELCOME TO THE MILITARY

The soldier boys of the Old Dominion, some six hundred strong, are now with us at the Beach. The First regiment of Virginia volunteers are being put through the annual training at the rifle range, and many visitors are flocking to witness the drills and dress parades which take place daily. There is something of interest going on all day long and an hourly service to the range by the Southern Railroad affords easy access for visitors to the camp and for the soldiers to the Beach, where, during their hours of leisure they will find a ready welcome, and for many of them delights and pleasures never before experienced.

Virginia Beach greets the volunteers and bids them welcome.

GERMANY'S REPLY

In answer to the remonstrances of this government against the sinking of our ships and the drowning of our people the German Chancellor tells us that if we obey German rules we may have the full freedom of the sea for which we yearn if we conduct ourselves according to German notions of behavior. Boiled down the reply is practically a dismissal of our contentions in three short words that do not look pretty in print. Now is the time for all good men to stand by Secretary Daniels' Advisory Board. Let us fill our newspapers with new inventions until the Kaiser turns pale and pleads for mercy!

Ignorant of the War.

Alaska people who live on the extreme upper reaches of the Novik river have just learned for the first time of the European war.

Last fall a few men came down the Porcupine river from the Arctic divide and people on the Yukon thought it a great joke when it was learned that the men from the rim of the pole had remained in total ignorance of the beligerent state of Europe until reaching the big river.

Bob Smith, Jack Larson and Ed Slater came out from the same region a while ago, ignorant of the war. Several men who spent the winter across the divide on the Kuskokwim had heard of the conflict.

The Happy Arcadian.

Once upon a time there was a man who got shipwrecked, along with some live stock and farming tools, on an island in the midst of the ocean. He began to farm. As he was the only human on the island, no neighbor's stock pastured on his young grain; no neighbor's chickens scratched up his garden; no neighbor's kids broke out his window lights or broke off his young trees, and no neighbor's dogs kept him awake with their howling.

Therefore he lived happily ever after, and died full of years, the only man who never got weary of humanity.

At the instance of the British government the State Department has called upon the Department of Justice to investigate the activities of certain German sympathizers in the United States who are alleged to have been employing unlawful means to strike at Great Britain and her allies.

Importation of a corps of Swiss dyestuff chemists to aid in the development of the new American coal car dye industry is the latest project of the bureau of foreign and domestic commerce in its effort to meet the American dyestuff famine resulting from the cutting off of the German supply.

Talk But Don't Think.

Once upon a time a parrot, desiring sport to relieve the monotony of existence, espied a dog and cried out: "Sic 'em!" The dog not recognizing the parrot as the author of the command, accepted the bird as the scribe, and charged. "Feathers flew. Later, when the dog had wandered away, the disheveled parrot dragged her aching bones to a perch and, with a mouth filled with sand and philosophy, said: "Folly, you talk too darned much."

And so do we all. The business of language is to furnish a medium for the exchange of thought.

It happens, however, that the most prolific producers of language are, as a rule, the most parsimonious in the matter of thought and ideas.

Two delightful women can rattle off language as a duet for an hour on a stretch without exchanging an idea, and two men can beat their record by an hour.

Very few people think. We merely open our faces, wag our tongues, and allow an outpouring of words to repeat a thought we found in a book. Parrots can do as well. Photographs can do better—because photographs repeat the thought with exactitude and without embellishment.

Everybody talks too much—and says too little. All the really useful or necessary conversation of a twelve-month could be handled in a thousand words, and all of the original thoughts any one of us has could be simply set forth on a postage stamp.

When the mind is busy the tongue is still. While the tongue was the creative mind looks up shop and... goes to sleep on a cot in the back office.

Circumstantial Evidence

Frank Klug, for whose "murder" Nick Georgian is serving a 25-year sentence, and whose "body" was identified by relatives, returned last week to his awe-stricken family in Wisconsin.

According to attorneys and officials the fact that it was not Klug who was murdered will make no difference to Georgian. That a man was murdered was well established, they said, and the circumstantial evidence positively connected Georgian with the crime. Georgian, however, has continually denied his guilt.

Klug left home because of discouraging domestic conditions. Fearing arrest for desertion, he said, he made no effort to communicate with his family and a recent letter from a friend gave him his first intimation that he had been "murdered."

To Clean Leather.

Leather chairs often become greasy looking where the arms and head rest on the leather. To remove these marks boil half pint of linseed oil and let it stand till nearly cold. Then pour in half pint vinegar, stir till it is well mixed and bottle. To use, pour a few drops on a piece of flannel and polish off with a soft duster. This preparation will thoroughly renovate all leather.

The demand for Norwegian fish continues to be so firm in the belligerent countries, especially Germany, that the fishermen are now getting 75 or 80 per cent above normal. Split cod, for instance, is selling at a price higher than first class fish ever brought before.

A CARD.

To My Fellow Citizens of Princess Anne

County, Virginia:

I hereby announce myself a candidate for Treasurer of Princess Anne County, Va., subject to the Democratic Primary on August 1st.

In making this announcement I take occasion to refer to the part I took in the work of rescuing Princess Anne from the humiliation and disgrace of Negro rule, which then threatened our County.

When I served my people, and it is for them to say how well I did the work: I was Chairman of the Democratic County Committee for 12 years, for 23 years I served as Election Judge and for 23 years as Poll Book Commissioner. And it was during these years I had many disagreeable duties to discharge, as many will remember. On one occasion on court day at Princess Anne Courthouse two Negroes—Hodges and Land—were making violent speeches against the white people of the County. John Nash came to me and said if he had twenty men he would take these Negroes from the stand. I told him to follow me and I would take them from the stand myself. I knocked Hodges from the stand and Land jumped over the fence, both leaving their holes in their flight.

When Tony Wilson was a Negro magistrate in Kempsville district, I was asked what should be done. I told my friends Tony had either to go out of office voluntarily or else he would disappear. The first case he had to try was at Princess Anne Court House. When he called his court to order I walked into the court room with a rope on my shoulder. After a while I said to Tony: "What the devil do you know about law?" He said: "Bah?" I then said to him: "Do you see this rope?" He said: "Yes sah. I was watching that rope some time and I want to get rid of this office." I told him if he did, to follow me. We then went to Judge Keelin's office, and Tony said: "Master Judge, this here office I've got I want to get rid of it." Judge Keelin told him if he did, to sign "these papers." Tony then said to me: "Mr. Cason, you ain't going to hang me now, are you?" I said to him that I had not said I was going to hang him, but had simply asked if he had not seen the rope over my shoulder.

On another occasion, it being court day, and the next day, Tuesday, being election day, James A. McAlpin and myself were in the Court-house yard when Jessie H. Caffee and his brother B. T. Caffee, who were running a hotel at Princess Anne, came up and said to me: "Walter, my dining room is full of Negroes and demand dinner, and my family is terribly frightened, won't you get a crowd and drive them out?" I pulled a pistol from James A. McAlpin's pocket, walked into the dining room alone and said: "I understand you Negroes want dinner. I have dinner enough in this run for you all. The door was got large enough for them to get out. They were all out in four or five deep at the door."

On the following night I was at Kempsville and James H. Bonney sent me word not to come to the Court House the next morning to serve as Judge of Election, as 200 Negroes would be there who said they intended to take my life. I borrowed a shot gun and at dawn next day, rode to the Court House. There I found James H. Bonney and a yard full of Negroes. I drove to the back door of the hotel and got out of the buggy, making the remark: "I understand you black devils are going to take my life, and before taking it I am going to kill some of you." I then proceeded to put some shells in my gun. James H. Bonney came out in his night clothes and tried to pull me in the house. I said to him, "No, let me shoot them." He said: "Then come out, and I'll tell you to get out." I went into the house, but as soon as I was inside Mr. Bonney locked the door, saying that I was the biggest fool he ever saw, as the Negroes had been there all night planning to kill me. When the sun rose I observed that this Negro mob was running and falling over fences in every direction. I was one of the Judges at the polls. About 10 o'clock John Capehart, a Negro, and one of the leaders of his race in Princess Anne, drove up with five wagon loads of Negroes to vote. When the voting of whites was slack, I voted two wagon loads of Negroes. By that time there was a rush of whites to the polls. Then I said to Capehart that as he had voted 18 Negroes, and as there was now a rush of white voters I was going to vote him one by one. He said no, that he had to vote the men and then go back and get more voters, and thereupon a rush was made for the window. Capehart being in front, I then told Capehart that if he did not move back and allow the white voters a chance I would leave the window and come out and knock him down. The Negro laughed and said: "Mr. Cason, I have never been knocked down in my life." I raised to get out of the window when E. E. Burroughs, one of the Judges of Election, said: "Walter, don't you go out there—those Negroes will kill you." I got out of the window and said to Capehart: "We are friends are we not?" "Yes, sir." You asked me to knock you down and I like to accommodate my friends!" Down went Capehart, falling at the window where the voting was being done. E. E. Burroughs looked out of the window and said: "Walter, has he voted?" I said no. Burroughs then remarked that he would never vote again, that he was dead. I crawled back to my place inside and told our boys to come on and vote, as it was not necessary to stop because there was a dead Negro. No one would come up to the window to vote on account of the Negro lying there, so I went out and pulled him around the corner of the Court House, where Dr. Wright took charge of him.

Six hours later some one came to me and said that Capehart wanted to see me. On going to where he was I found him sitting up and leaning against the Court House. He said: "Mr. Cason, are you mad with me?" When I told him I was not, he said he would never again ask me to knock him down—that he had seen more stars when I hit him than he had ever witnessed in the fragment.

At the next election this same Negro Capehart was appointed a Judge of elections. A few minutes before sunrise the following day I got out of the window to go to Bonney's for a jump so as to see how to count the ballots, making the remark as I left for the boys not to leave too soon after the polls had been closed, as some fun was to be had. I heard such a fuss and so much laughing in the voting room that I went back and asked what the trouble was. They said Capehart had gone out of the back window, saying he knew what that meant, and that they were going to kill him there, that night.

As to the correctness of the foregoing statements, I respectfully refer to the following gentlemen, well known citizens: J. H. Bonney, A. T. Herbert, J. L. Herrick, Randolph Ward, O. B. Meaze, Solomon Bonney, Judge J. M. Keeling, E. E. Burroughs, R. L. Atwood, Martin Whitehead, John Jarvis Whitehead, Major J. T. Woodhouse, J. O. Land, J. M. Malbon, J. T. Malbon, S. W. Ewell, J. P. Woodhouse.

And now, fellow-citizens, I submit that had it not been for prompt and vigorous action at a critical period in the political history of our county it would have been over-run by a horde of ignorant and vicious Negro officials, and that the part I played to avert such calamity was in obedience to a sacred duty—a duty I owed my wife and children—aye, the family of every white citizen of Princess Anne County.

And now, at the age of 64 years, I would as quickly repeat in the most emphatic and vigorous manner any similar outrage upon the white manhood and womanhood of my County as I did in former life.

In conclusion, I beg to assure the good people of Princess Anne County that if they elect me to serve as Treasurer, that I will give the office my undivided and personal attention and endeavor to discharge its duties with credit to myself and to the best interests of the county.

I trust all my friends will be at the polls early on the 1st day of August and stay all day. Let us all pull together and put an end to ring rule.

Very respectfully,
(Adv) W. W. CASON.

FRESH WATER PEARLS.

The Lure That Keeps Our Mussel Dredgers Hard at Work.

"You don't hear much about fresh water pearls," said a Malden lane jewelry dealer, "but we raise them in this country just the same, and you may be surprised to know that their annual product runs up into the millions—not very far, of course, as do imported salt water pearls, but far enough to reach with the pearl buttons made from the shells to a value of about $7,000,000.

"These pearls come from the bivalve known as the mussel and there are several varieties. The great bulk of them come from the Mississippi river and its tributaries. The Mississippi valley pearl fishers are not at all of the same class as the con-ferres of the Orient, and yet they have yet found any poetry in the promiscuous labor they perform dredging and waiting and scraping for mussels.

"Pearls have been found worth as much as $2,000 each, possibly more than that, but when a fine large one is found it is quickly sold in pieces with the salt water, higher priced importations, and just what price it will bring then nobody knows but the man who sells it as imported, and he is not telling."
"These American pearl fishers, however, keep at their work, dreaming always of making the great find, as the gold diggers do who stare and freeze, living on hope till they die in despair. It is rare even in one worth $50, but numerous small ones are found, though in the final summing up of receipts the fishers get more for the humble shells from the button factories than they do for the pearls they seek in the shells. They make a fair living out of the shells as they never would out of the pearl, which contains a moral, if you want to look for it."—New York Sun.

Mastication.

"The body is a manufactory," said a doctor recently. "It has to manufacture bone and blood and muscle and brain, and a wonderful process it is. Now, the first part of the process takes place in the mouth."
—as in most factories, the first is the most important. If a wrong start is made, everything that follows is put wrong. If the food isn't well masticated and mixed with the saliva the stomach, the liver and the intestines are thrown out of gear; consequently most of the more advanced doctors are paying a great deal of attention to the condition of their patients' teeth. They know to garble Shakespeare a bit, that "good digestion waits on mastication, and health on both."

They Know Castor Oil.

The oldest medical book in the world was found in a rock tomb by the Nile, dating from about 2000 B. C. It is a roll about sixty-six feet long and carries prescriptions for all sorts of ailments. Castor oil is one of the remedies prescribed. It has been used pretly steadily ever since.

How to Make Flavored Lemonade.

Wash one cup of strained and place in a saucepan with one quart of water and the peel from three lemons.
Boil slowly for one hour. Strain and add two cups of boiling water and sugar to taste and the lemon juice.
This is fine for a cold if taken hot.

Economy
Hints.

A penny saved is a penny earned—Benjamin Franklin.

A n economist wardrobe is hard to get for the young girl who wishes in a modified degree the fashions of her sisters. That means for this year flaring skirt, short or round waist, still some jumpers—a useful style for remodeling old frocks—short coats, usually belted for the young girl though often and bolero jackets are coming to the fore.

From three to three and a half yards round is a good width for the skirt of a schoolgirl, which, ad. reach to her shoe tops. The excessive flare, often seven and eight yards around, not only takes more material, but means much more sewing and is far from girlish.
The skirts are not especially hard to make, as they are kept rather close fitting around the hips, and the flare is made by the cut. Often the skirt is gathered to the waist line, sometimes tail in front, and some pretty girlish models show the fullness held in by shirtings at the hip.

Tucks around the skirts are a favorite trimming. A girlish trimming to a three inch hem at the bottom of the skirt with two three inch tucks six inches apart.

For the separate waists three may be of madras or lawn made on tailored lines. Often the young girl makes all her sport blouses over the "safety" pattern. Both long and three-quarter sleeves are permissible, and the neck is stiffly-V. The collar may be attached or adjustable, as preferred.

Three blouses may be of mail, batiste, dotted swiss or, for best of all, over lace in a girlish design of dot or small flower of pale design.

A fine serge is the latest thing for a mildly suit. One of the cotton gowns may be a nobby in white kindergarten cloth to which there may be several sets of collars and cuffs—one dull blue, another rose, a third white with red or blue bandings or reversed band. Another cotton gown may be pink chambray made without other trimming than tucks. This is good either on jumper lines or over with white collar or with a single breast ed blouse opening up the front, slightly-V neck and worn with white all over embroidery or embroidered lines cuffs and collar.

For the afternoon dress, lawn, dim-ity, dotted swiss, cotton voile, flin—these most suitable for the day and the first are all good. For the silk foulard or India silk give girlish results. Be sure they are spot-proof, better yet, that they wash. The suit may be-serge, covert cloth or poplin. Short sleeves are popular, but a warm navy blue is the best choice for a girl who must wear her suit two years. If there is a good suit from last year—jerked the skirt is not too narrow-—it may be made into a new serge for great wear. This dye well when it has been cleaned several times.

For the sport coat choose a lightweight tweed coat or one of the single weight chinchillas or wool mixtures.
These are more sensible than the linen or fancy mercerized silk and cotton mixtures that are stylish, but do not give enough protection after tennis and other heating sports.

For the dancing dresses, which may include a quadrille gown, malle, em-brokked tulle, net-dotted, plain or the new craque patterns—or flower organizes are dainty, girlish and lustrous. They are far above for summer wear than crepe de chine, chiff-or alls.

Eating with the Knife.

Use of the fork is comparatively modern. The original fork was two pronged, and its adoption was held to beoken an unusual degree of elegance and refinement. "The fairly far cleanliness has preserved the use of steel forks with two prongs," writes Lady Newdigate. (She spoke to the closing years of the eighteenth century.) "With regard to little bits of meat, which cannot so well be taken hold of with the two pronged forks, recourse is had to the knife, which is broad and round at the extremity." Peas at that time were eaten with a knife.

A Curious Dish.

The favorite dish at Egyptian harem feasts is a curious one. It appears to be a lamb roasted whole, and it is, but there is much more to it than appears on the outside, for inside the lamb is a turkey, and inside the turkey is a chicken; the chicken is stuffed with a pigeon, the pigeon with a quail, and a becaico, said to be the smallest bird known, except the humming bird, is at the heart of this curious roast.

The Detrimental.

Ma—You can't tell what she has seen in him? My dear girl, the man has five thousand a year! Mamie—What a pity! Ma—A pity? Surely money is no drawback to a man?
Mamie—No; but the man's such a drawback to the money!—Sydney Bulletin.

The Stationery of the Business Man

Is considered by many an index to that man's business character.
Individuality is desirable; neatness and quality in the paper stock used are essentials. This office is equipped to supply you promptly, and at prices that will appeal to the purse. Office Stationery and Printing of any description that will compare favorably with that turned out by the big city printing offices.
